DC Officials Don't Believe Water Tank Will Burst

By FRANK LaPIERRE

People living in the shadow of a million gallon water reservoir in the heart of Daly City fear the aging concrete tank might split any day, triggering a Teton Dam type disaster.

Mrs. Louise Garry of 482 Wellington Ave., said the huge water tank broke open in 1939 "without an earthquake" and wiped out several homes in the Bellevue-Peoria street area.

"There was another break several years ago and the ancient structure is now nothing but a patch-up job, no matter what the water department says," Mrs. Garry told the City Council Monday night.

The city disagrees with Mrs. Garry's conclusions.

Officials claim there is no danger of the giant tank breaking and sending a tidal wave of water rushing through city streets.

Herbert R. McDonald, water superintendent for the city, said reservoir number one, the tank in question, is "considered safe and usable to its full capacity."

The reservoir, according to McDonald, was constructed of reinforced concrete in 1916 and has a capacity of 700,000 gallons.

No evidence of deterioration of the buttressed walls has been found, even though the city has conducted at least a dozen major inspections of the structure in recent years, officials claim.

Former City Engineer Bill Chapman, now president of KCA Engineers in San Francisco, said Mrs. Garry's fears are "completely unfounded."

"If the reservoir (No. 1) leaks, it will only leak to the nearest rock and stop. You see, the reservoir is built on solid rock," Chapman said.

Chapman has been inside the reservoir several times, he said.

In 1960, shortly after he became city engineer, Chapman drained the rectangular shaped tank and went inside to visually check it.

"I can tell you this, that reservoir has never been repaired," Chapman said.

In 1939, the wood roof of the reservoir collapsed, but no water spilled and the sides did not break, Chapman said.

There have been occasions when overflow water spilled down roadways, causing minor flooding in the area.

However, this was stopped with the installation of new check valves, a city official said.

The nearest any of the city's reservoirs has ever come to collapsing was during the 1957 earthquake that swayed buildings and toppled chimneys throughout Daly City.

Reservoir No. 5, which holds 1.5 million gallons of water, was badly shaken and the roof caved in then.

Officials Dedicate Bridge In SSF

It seemed odd to attend a bridge dedication during the state's worst drought in recent history.

The Utah Avenue Bridge, spanning Colma Creek in South San Francisco's industrial area, was dedicated during informal ceremonies at the site Monday noon.

Several months in the building, costing half a million dollars, the four-lane concrete bridge is designed to tower above the waters of a 50-year flood.

But it was strange indeed, to hear representatives from county and city governments talking of the need for rain, while standing on the newly built bridge while the waters of Colma Creek meander toward San Francisco Bay.

Only three years ago, the "Old Utah Avenue Bridge" acted as a barrier to the flow of Colma Creek during heavy rains and water backed up, flooding large areas of the industrial tract.

Monday, with temperatures soaring unseasonably into the high seventies, officials made their brief remarks about how the bridge was desperately needed. They then trooped off to the coolness of a nearby restaurant.

Utah Avenue Bridge is another cog in the massive Colma Flood Control Zone wheel.

The total cost of the project is expected to be at least $10.3 million. Five cities — Daly City, S.S.F., Pacifica, Colma and San Bruno — in the zone, and, to varying degrees, each pays a portion of the costs for preventing flooding in the lower creek reaches — if the rains ever come.

County Engineer Sid Cantwell explained that already some $4 million has been spent upgrading the creek and bridges.

There is still some $5.5 million to go.

Next: Construction of the Produce Avenue Bridge.

Commission to be Asked About a Mussel Rock Garbage Transfer Station

The City Council in Daly City Monday authorized its staff to ask the California Coastal Commission for that agency's feelings on construction of a garbage transfer station at Mussel Rock.

By "feeling out" the commission, city officials believe they would be better able to meet the Aug. 15 deadline for closing of the dump site.

Several weeks ago, the State Water Quality Control Board ordered the Mussel Rock dump closed, because an earthquake might trigger a massive garbage slide and pollute the ocean water.

It was decided that a transfer station, where trucks would collect garbage from homes and transfer the loads into larger vehicles for transportation to a regional-type dump, might be built at Mussel Rock.

The city included in its draft Environmental Impact Report information on both the dump and a city park.

Meanwhile, Daly City and Pacifica officials entered into a joint agreement on a consultants study to determine the best site for a transfer station to possibly serve both municipalities.

The Daly City council's action would not circumvent this study, officials pointed out Monday.

Normally, before requesting approval for such a facility from the Coastal Commission, a number of other applications and approvals must be secured.

But if the Coastal Commission is not receptive to a transfer facility at Mussel Rock, it would save the city time and effort to bypass this procedure, officials believe.

In other action Monday, the council unanimously approved an amendment to a city-scavenger company agreement that one scavenger official claims "puts the city in the garbage business."

The amendments stipulate that the scavenger company must pay the city 8.3 per cent of its gross receipts from its total operation, except revenues from the sale of any real estate or personal property.

Also, the company is to collect from the Serve-U-Debris Co. a dump fee of $3.25 per box as long as the scavenger company affiliate uses the Mussel Rock dump.

Further, the company must now provide the city with a financial report whenever requested by the city, but at least once a year.

The scavengers' contract with the city to collect garbage runs until Aug. 30, 1989.

Since the company asked for, and got, a substantial rate increase last year, it has fallen under attack by critics who bitterly denounce the council's action in granting the hike even before employees had settled a wage dispute with the company.

Rising cost of help and equipment was blamed for the need to hike the rates, Richard T. Dwyer, accountant for the scavenger company, said.

Even Dwyer came under attack, because of his affiliation with both the city and scavenger company. Dwyer audited both the city and scavenger company financial records.

In the past, he has been a stern critic of city accounting practices.

One stipulation of the new agreement that has raised the ire of some scavenger officials is the city's order that "it will not distribute any dividends to any of its shareholders, nor increase the salaries of shareholders, officers or directors prior to Jan. 1, 1979 and only thereafter if the City Manager has confirmed, in writing, the fact that the Equipment Reserve Fund is properly in existence or monies have been properly expended."

Coast Shuns $1 Million

By JANET PARKER

Financially strapped Pacifica said No to $1 million Monday night.

Leery of certain strings attached to an offer by the state and San Mateo County to purchase Pacifica beach land for public ownership and control, the council voted 2-2 to reject the offer at this time. Councilman Stan Farber was absent.

The tie vote defeated the motion. The future of Pacifica's 10-year-old effort toward public ownership of beaches thus remains uncertain.

The city learned in January that the $1 million was available for beach acquisition, most likely all or some of the San Pedro Beach property near Linda Mar.

It had come as a surprise to the council. Until then, the council had understood that it must agree to maintain the beach land that is purchased and incorporated into the state system.

Since 1966, Pacifica voters have three times turned down proposals for tax increases to support beach acquisition and maintenance.

The most recent, in March of 1976, was a proposal for an increase of 7.5 cents for each $100 of assessed valuation.

Councilman Nick Gust reported Monday night that he, Councilman Sidney Lorvan and several concerned citizens recently met with state Director of Parks and Recreation Herb Rhodes to discuss the possible purchase.

Gust said he left the meeting understanding that the state is ready to buy the land with just the minimal maintenance already provided by the city.

"I'd hate to see us throw that $1 million away," Gust said.

However, he said, City Manager Don Weidner threw cold water on the whole proposal in a Jan. 24 memo. Weidner had outlined what possibly might be required of the city to keep the beach up to state standards.

"As can be imagined, once the state, county and media begin publicizing the creation of a new public beach on the San Mateo coastline, hundreds, if not thousands, of people in the Bay Area will wish to take advantag e of this new recreation resource." Weidner wrote.

"This can be assumed to create a heavy obligation on Pacifica to make and keep the beach area in a usable condition," he said.

Among possible obligations, Weidner added, would be sanitary restrooms, barbecue and picnic equipment, liability insurance, a crew of eight to 10 fire fighters for water rescue, and an emergency cleaning staff when volunteers were not available.

Mrs. Pat Ostovar, a proponent of the March ballot measure, said Weidner's memo was a guideline for "how not to buy a beach."

"My impression from Herb Rhodes was, 'take the money and run'," she said. The state, she said, will not be looking over Pacifica's shoulder once the land is purchased.

She said Rhodes was aware Pacifica does not have the money to provide a complex maintenance plan.

Weidner said it was simply the staff's responsibility to point out all the potential complications.

"We feel it's our responsibility to assist you to consider some of these things that are not so pleasant," he said.

"One of the things that staff is criticized about is that we never say anything until it's too late," Weidner said. So, this time, the staff is providing an early warning.

Mayor Janice Fulford joined Gust in voting to accept the $1 million and to enter into an agreement with the state and county.

The city can't agree to maintain the beaches when it doesn't have the money to do so, Councilman Mark Savage said.

Recall Was Dead Anyway, Says Mayor

Pacifica Mayor Janice Fulford was gaveled out of order Monday night as she attempted to publicly rebut the parting comments of the now defunct Recall Committee.

It was the first City Council meeting since the Recall Committee failed to gather enough signatures to force a recall ballot against Mrs. Fulford and Councilmen Sidney Lorvan and Mark Savage.

Although the recall issue is officially dead, Mrs. Fulford's comments revived a lingering question: "Could the committee have gathered enough signatures if it had been granted a 10-day extension?

"I question seriously if 10 days would have gotten them the additional signatures they needed," Mrs. Fulford said.

None of the Recall Committee leaders was in the council audience to respond to the mayor.

City Manager-Clerk Don Weidner said last week that, according to a provision in 1977 recall laws, he was prepared to grant a 10-day extension had the committee simply handed him the incomplete petitions.

The committee leaders, however, retained the petitions when the Feb. 7 deadline arrived and Weidner didn't volunteer his interpretation of the law.

Some recall activists protested that Weidner — as a city employe paid by taxpayers — should have advised the Recall Committee of its right to an extension.

Mayor Fulford surprised her colleagues Monday night by turning over her gavel to Lorvan and calmly walking to the speaker's podium.

Her remarks came after the council's approval of the minutes, not at the regular agenda period for council reports or oral public communications.

The mayor pointed out that in 1973 she led a successful referendum to block construction of Rockaway Highlands apartment complex. Her group, she said, collected 3,371 signatures and 22 per cent of those, or 746, were found invalid by the city clerk.

If that 22 per cent figure, she said were applied to the Recall Committee petitions containing 2,878 of the necessary 3,786 signatures, the petitions would fall far short, she said.

And that, she said, is "giving them the benefit of the doubt."

When she began the 1973 referendum effort, she said, she asked then City Atty. John Sherman for advice. Sherman said, in effect, "Lady, get your own attorney," Mrs. Fulford recalled.

Educational Pendulum Swinging Back

Attention on Basic Skills, Discipline

By RICK SULLIVAN

Parents in the Mt. Diablo Unified School District in Contra Costa County recently took sleeping bags and cold food to camp overnight on the campus of Diablo Vista Elementary School.

The occasion was not a scheduled campout in the adult education curriculum. In fact, few enjoyed the experience.

The overnight stay, however, was recognized as necessary if the parents were to assure their children a seat in a classroom of a new school where emphasis on basic subjects and discipline would be the cornerstones of the school's educational program.

Unfortunately, not all those who slept in line all night were able to register their children in the school, called "Academics Plus."

They will perhaps have to wait until the following school year, when the district may open another similar elementary school.

In San Mateo County, parental demand for a "return to the basics" has not reached the same point as that in Contra Costa County, but there is a growing number of parents and school district trustees who are beginning to clamor for the resurrection of traditional education.

One of the most active parents' groups on the Peninsula is in San Carlos. Parents there have successfully urged the elementary school district board trustees to survey all parents to determine if they would enroll their children in a replica of the Academics Plus School.

And in San Bruno, Trustee Christo Pallas is urging his colleagues to support a re-emphasis on the basic subjects — reading, writing and arithmetic — a definition of strict proficiency levels that students must attain before they are graduated to a higher grade.

Additionally, many school board candidates are promising that if they are elected March 8 they will insist the schools pay more attention to the basics.

The Academics Plus Program in the Mt. Diablo District was developed by a group of parents with the help of the district director of elementary education, W. Kenneth Lowry.

The program will begin in the fall at Diablo Vista, a kindergarten through seventh grade school.

According to Lowry, the school will emphasize reading, math, English grammar and handwriting, but not at the expense of the other subjects.

Lowry says the school will establish and maintain standards that both the students and the teachers must follow. These will include codes of dress and deportment.

"Outlandish" dress or abusive language will not be tolerated.

Teachers will be asked to wear ties, and students will be prohibited from wearing open-toed shoes or sandals or cutoff pants.

The curriculum will be structured on a "priority basis." This means, Lowry says, that if a student, say, is not reading well for his grade level, other subjects will take a "backseat" until the child improves his reading skills.

The school program, Lowry says, defines a four-step process of discipline. It does not include corporal punishment.

Lowry explains that the program sets boundaries for behavior. When a student steps outside the limits, he will be required to write a description of his behavior and to submit it to his parents.

If this does not correct misbehavior, the teacher and principal and the parents of the child will meet to discuss other remedies. If disruptive behavior continues, either on the playground or in the classroom, the child will be sent home for a day.

Parents of the enrolling children have signed "support agreements" saying they will accept all the rules of the program.

The 20 teachers volunteered to be transferred to the new school.

In discussing the difference between Academics Plus and other district schools, Lowry comments:

"The world is what people perceive it to be. Some parents perceive the other schools as not stressing enough basic subjects; tolerating disrespectful behavior and bad language. The parents thus organized a school program to address these concerns.

"They also established a school advisory committee to monitor the school's practices, and they demanded that competency testing be given in subject areas."

Parents designed the program, Lowry says, to take some of the "guesswork" out of education to such a degree that teachers and students know what the boundaries will be and what will be expected.

He said the program will help parents forecast the educational results for their children.

Harold Meeker, a San Carlos Elementary School Distric trustee, was elected to the board two years ago on a back-to-basics platform. He promised he would work to establish in San Carlos a school similar to Academics Plus.

If a survey, just sent out, shows that 25 to 30 per cent of district parents are interested in Academics Plus, then he hopes a school can be established.

A similar survey was sent out last year, but according to Meeker, for various reasons only a small percentage of parents indicated that they supported more traditional instruction.

Meeker stressed that a current group of about 20 parents has been the prime mover in pushing for an Academics Plus school.

Since last November, Christo Pallas has been urging his fellow San Bruno School District board members to tighten the elementary and intermediate school curricula by emphasizing the basic subjects more than teachers have in the past, and to begin strict proficiency testing.

Pallas said he has conducted a random poll of local businessmen in which many indicated that "students graduating from high school are weak in the basic skills of reading, writing and computation."

He said executives of large corporations have told him that many young persons "cannot fill out a simple job application form."

"When looking over the basics that high schools expect of their students," Pallas said, "I found them to be skills which should have been mastered before the ninth grade. The high schools shouldn't be repeating the work of the elementary school districts.

"Their (high schools) duty is to expand and review the basic skills," he said.

Pallas has suggested that San Bruno take the following steps to improve the basics:

- Determine what students should master at each grade level.
- In all grades, test students at the beginning of a term, in the middle of the term and at the end. The tests will help to identify the progress of the students.

Dr. Don Halverson of the County Office of Education said he sees the educational pendulum in this county swinging gradually from the more open concept of classroom instruction to the more closely structured school.

He says at this point there is no great groundswell of support for a return to traditional education, but he admits there is evidence of it.

"What happened in the 1960s is that education moved from a structured, teacher-directed philosophy toward individualization of student instruction," Dr. Halverson explains.

"School districts encouraged students to take many learning responsibilities on themselves and, in some cases, asked that students draw up contracts with their teachers. Now, we are seeing evidence of the pendulum swinging in the other direction."

Recall

"We never took one minute of the city attorney's time or the city manager's time," she added.

However, Councilman Nick Gust, who had publicly supported the recall, protested the mayor's unexpected comments.

"The Recall Committee should be present and given equal time," Gust said, claiming the mayor was out of order.

Lorvan banged the gavel and Mrs. Fulford attempted to proceed. He agreed that the mayor's comments were out of order, and she returned to her seat at the council table.

Later, however, Mrs. Fulford finished her speech to an audience of three at the press table.

She said City Manager Weidner had clearly asked the Recall Committee leaders three times on Feb. 7 at City Hall if they were satisfied with their legal advice. Each time, Chairwoman Betty Wilson said she was.

Mrs. Fulford said that even she could tell simply by reading the recall codes that a 10-day extension was possible.

Besides, she said, if the committee couldn't collect enough signatures in 60 days, the 10-day extension wouldn't have helped.

The mayor went on to say that the unsuccessful recall campaign has damaged the city in a number of ways.

She said the council has learned that the owners of a large office complex planned at the top of Sharp Park Road are having a difficult time securing tenants and that the recall controversy is at least partially to blame.

She also said that the council's search for a new director of community development to replace Les Clark, who resigned, "has been complicated by this matter." Some persons originally interested in the position and finally offered the job have turned it down, she added.

"There has been an inordinate number of staff hours spent on this," the mayor said.

After the meeting, the council met with Weidner and City Atty. Gloria Scheid in a closed-door personnel session. Gust had asked for the session to clarify the duties of the two employes, including their obligation to advise the Recall Committee, if any.

more impressive by comparing the one-tenth reduction with the previous year's one-third increase in water use.

But the possibility of a further necessary reduction — voluntary or mandatory — remains a concern.

Drilling wells is not the answer, the experts say, because most Peninsula well sources produce water too "hard" in minerals, or too salty, to be of much use.

The factor that may decide whether Peninsulans drink less and bathe less is the snowpack in the Sierra.

"We are waiting for reports from the San Francisco Water Department regarding the snowpack in the Sierra watershed," said Warren Mitchell of Redwood City, president of the San Francisco Bay Area Water Users Association.

"That report is to be presented to the San Francisco Public Utilities Commission on Feb. 22.

"Then we find out whether we remain with the voluntary 10 per cent, or go to a 25 per cent reduction."

Barney Tumey, North Peninsula district manager for the California Water Service Company, cautioned that "10 per cent is not so impressive.

"It really isn't that much of an achievement. It only means people are cutting down on the waste, reducing the little things.

"Those people who have really made a game out of it have reduced their water use much more."

Gene Kelleher, acting assistant general manager of San Francisco's Water Department, said the city's 1.5 million water customers may soon be asked to make that extra effort if the "non-winter continues."

If the Sierra watershed providing water for the Hetch Hetchy water system gets 50 per cent of its normal rainfall between February and March, Kelleher said, Bay Area water users could probably get by with only a 15 per cent reduction.

He said the local reser- about drilling wells to expand their water supply. Davidson said he answers that well-drilling is "risky."

"There are no wells on our domestic water supply," he said, "the quality simply went bad. They turnedsaline. Some are in use for irrigation, but even that is risky.

"We have had a few people who have had underground springs, who have dug underground cisterns, that has worked very satisfactorily."

Davidson said he was satisfied that "people are cutting down" on their water use.

During 1975-75, he said, water use in Burlingame and Hillsbrorough grew by 36 per cent in one year. In 76-77, consumption dropped 3 per cent, and "just this month water use has gone down about by 11.3 per cent."

Mitchell, deputy director of public works for Redwood City, said his community had reduced water use by 10 to 14 per cent during the past month.

"The conservation effort is noticeable," he said.

He said there are some wells operating on the Peninsula, in San Bruno and Daly City areas, and that San Mateo's Coyote Point golf course is supplied by wells.

There are two problems with well water, he said: The volume is not sufficient and the quality is often poor.

Mitchell recalled that certain Peninsula areas had been supplied by well water before the Hetch Hetchy system was built.

Most wells, he said, were filled in or closed off because of "salt water intrusion."

Tumey agreed that the most of the Peninsula's wells had been "taken out of use by 1940." Their water, he said, "had become too hard, and treatment to reduce the mineral content had grown too expensive.

"There are some private wells," he agreed, "but none of them are high-producing.

"South San Francisco gets about 10 per cent of its water supply from wells, for example, and San Bruno gets some."

Tumey said water company officials are "pleased with the public response" to water conservation pleas and "want that response to continue."

He said the current warm weather may increase water use, however, if people turn to the outdoors and gardening.

"If it stays warm a few days, our consumption could double," he said. "In the summer, about half the water we deliver goes for irrigation of plants."

His company, he said, would soon be providing free water restriction devices, including a dye to detect leaks in toilets.

"If the drought continues," he warned, "San Francisco Water Department is going to have to re-evaluate. They are the supplier for something like 1.5 million people, and it would be proper for all the people within that area to make an equal effort."

S. San Francisco Major Crime Up

Major crime in South San Francisco increased 22 per cent in 1976 — the biggest increase Police Chief James Datzman can recall in the North County city.

Datzman released his department's annual report for 1976 on Tuesday.

He said he is particularly concerned about a 17 per cent increase in burglary and a 25 per cent increase in all other thefts.

"There's no way we can be pleased with a 22 per cent increase in crime," Datzman said. "This is the largest I can recall."

The previous year's increase was 13 per cent.

From 1975 to 1976, the number of reported burglaries increased from 703 to 822. All other thefts increased from 1,312 to 1,641 and motor vehicle thefts increased from 209 to 253, a 21 per cent hike.

Armed robbery increased 28 per cent, from 42 to 54 reports. Aggravated assault increased 24 per cent, from 41 to 51 reports.

There was one reported homicide in 1976 while there was none in 1975.

The only one of seven major crimes to decrease was rape, a 67 per cent drop from 12 cases in 1975 to four in 1976.

Datzman also noted that the officer response time increased an average of 6.41 minutes from 4.53 minutes in 1975 to 10.94 minutes in 1976.

While the increase in response time for felonies was up only 47 seconds to 3.47 minutes, the response time for miscellaneous calls increased 10.77 minutes to 15.58 minutes.

Datzman said he will probably be asking the City Council in his budget request for 1977-78 for several police technicians — non-sworn personnel who can handle routine police assignments at a lower salary.

Skyline Offering Class

Parents: if you are disappointed by the rapidly disappearing playground areas for children in your neighborhood, plan to attend a two-hour lecture entitled "Adventure Playgrounds: A New, Creative Recreation Experience."

The concept of adventure playgrounds and how communities and organizations can provide such recreational settings will be the topic of the offering to be held March 1 at Skyline College in San Bruno.

The program will be held in Bldg. 2, room 2306 and there will be a $2 fee.

Skyline recreation instructor Andy Ruiz and guest lecturer Loretta DuPertuis will discuss the importance of having children experience adventure as an aid to developing self-confidence and self-reliance.

A film entitled "Children Waiting" will be shown along with a slide presentation on hour various American cities are implementing the adventure playground concept.

Jr. Grand National Returns to Cow Palace

The 31st Annual Junior Grand National, Livestock Exposition, Rodeo and Horse Show, a show designed strictly for young people, has been scheduled April 1-13 at the San Francisco Cow Palace, Grand National Manager Darrel Chapman has announced.

The Livestock Exposition, featuring 2,000 exhibitors, will be held from April 1-5, with the Junior Rodeo April 2-3, and the Horse Show April 7-13. Deadline for entering the Livestock Exposition is February 23. Horse show entires close March 18.

"THE JUNIOR GRAND National is the only all-inclusive youth-oriented show in the nation," said Chapman, "and we lavish as much care on our Junior Show as we do for the Grand National in the fall."

The Livestock Exposition is open to all 4-H Club and Future Farmers of America members. It includes classes for market steers, swine and sheep, as well as a dairy show and a goat show. Also scheduled is a breeding show for heifers and ewes open to anyone between 9 and 19 (you must own the animal).

The Junior Rodeo will feature outstanding young riders and ropers from throughout the State as they compete in the California High School Regional Finals.

The Horse Show, open to young people 17 and under, is the largest junior horse show on the Pacific Coast, and one of the most prestigious in the country.

Ninety-six different classes are scheduled in the Western and English Divisions. Allen Ross of Santa Barbara will again direct the Junior Horse Show.

A SPECIAL HIGHLIGHT of the Junior Grand National will be the annual market auction in which all market steers, sheep and swine will be sold to the general public.

All proceeds of the sales go to the youngsters to help defray the cost of raising the animals.

For information on the Grand National, write the Cow Palace, P.O. Box 34206, San Francisco, or call 584-2480.

Dorothy DeBolt to Meet Friends

Dorothy DeBolt of the DeBolt family, about whom Joseph P. Blank wrote "19 Steps up the Mountain," will be speaker at the Friends of the Daly City Library book review Thursday evening, Feb. 24, 7:30 p.m., in the community room, Serramonte Library, 40 Wembley Drive.

The Friends will celebrate at the review their 21st birthday. President Mrs. Albert Teglia welcomes the public.

The event has been scheduled by Mrs. Joseph Canada, book review chairwoman.

Dorothy DeBolt, who was born in San Francisco, and her first husband, the late Ted C. Atwood, began adopting seemingly unadoptable, handicapped children to supplement their own brood. At the time, they lived in Placerville. Dorothy's second husband, Bob, has cooperated and aided in the growth of the remarkable family. They now reside in Piedmont.

Added to their six "biological" children are 13 others, who have been adopted or for whom the DeBolts are legal guardians.

Most of these children are Korean, Korean-Caucasian or Vietnamese in ancestry. They have such handicaps or multiple handicaps as being blind, paralyzed by polio, paraplegic, and even one born without arms or legs.

The executive secretary of the Committee of Responsibility, a group who brought war-wounded children to this country for treatment, once wrote: "Dorothy has a heart like an apartment house and Bob, apparently, has just added a few more units, and I can only see for your further expansion."

The DeBolts founded AASK (Aid to Adoption of Special Kids) in 1974. This is a publicly supported, non-profit, national organization to encourage and assist families in the adoption of children with physical, mental and other handicaps.

Joseph P. Blank, the author, a roving editor for "Readers Digest," is a regular contributor to that magazine. His articles have appeared in "Redbook," "Harper's" and "McCalls" magazines and in more than a dozen anthologies and textbooks. He lives in Yorktown Heights, New York.

Refreshments will be served following the program.

Foster Care Workshops Set

Whether you are an experienced foster parent or just interested in the foster care of children, plan to attend "Skills in Foster Parenting," a series of workshops offered by the Skyline College Community Services program.

This eight-week course will focus on some of the vital concerns of foster parents.

The group will meet on Tuesday evenings from 7-10 p.m. on March 3, 10, 17, 24, 31; April 7, 14 and 21.

Sessions will be held at the Western Savings and Loan office, 2 Bayhill Shopping Center in San Bruno.

Mary Ann Tse, a San Mateo County Foster Home Developer, will conduct the workshops, which have a $3 registration fee.

A variety of issues will be covered, including understanding and working with the natural parents, helping the damaged child and handling behavioral problems.

Through relaxed discussions among guest experts, participants and Mary Ann Tse, the legal rights of foster parents, natural parents and the children will be explored.

For more information and registration write Skyline College Community Services Office, 3300 College Drive, San Bruno, or call 355-7000 ext. 338.

Yoga: Untie Those 'Knots'

Want to untie some internal knots and learn to relax?

An eight-part yoga seminar will be offered at Allen Elementary School, San Bruno.

The course begins March 1 at 3:15 p.m. in the school's multipurpose room.

Jean Girardot will conduct the class. She is a member of the California Yoga Teachers Association, and has eight years of teaching experience including A.Y.M. seminars in England and Wales.

There will be a $25 registration fee.

Yoga stresses the importance of "doing" rather than "achieving." It is for anyone, regardless of age. The purpose of Yoga is to keep the body running as smoothly as possible.

For more information about this course, call or write Skyline College Community Services Office, at 330 College Drive, San Bruno, or phone 355-7000, Ext. 338.

There's Hope For You Cakes

The Daly City Recreation Department invites all individuals 16 years of age and older to register in the cake decorating program which will be taught by Ron Wells.

A six-week session will be held at Westmoor Park Clubhouse, 123 Edgemont Drive, Tuesdays from Feb. 15 - March 22, 7-9:30 p.m.

Registration deadline isFeb. 11. Fee $12.00/Residents,$18.00/Non-Residents. Students to furnish minimal supplies.

Session outline: First week — demonstration, equipment and recipes; second week — basic flowers and shells; third week — stringwork and borders; fourth week — leaves and novelties. Fifth week — writing; sixth week — culmination of all skills on actual cake.

Advanced registration is required and fees will not be taken at class.

To register, send name, address including city and zip code, daytime phone and correct fee to the Daly City Recreation Department, 134 Hillside Blvd., Daly City, prior to listed deadline.

Please note program and session.

Make checks payable to Daly City Recreation Department.

All registration is on a first-come-first-serve basis. Refunds will not be made after the first class of each session. Daly City residents will be given preference should a program have a full enrollment.

For more information, call 992-5356.

Classes for The Young Thespians

The Department of Theatre Arts of San Francisco State University will offer creative drama classes for children from 6 through 11 years of age on Saturday mornings beginning Feb. 26.

Two five-week sessions will be held from 10-11:15 a.m. in the Creative Arts building on the San Francisco State campus.

The first five-week session runs from Feb. 26 through March 26. The second session begins April 23 and runs through May 21.

A child may enroll in either five-week session for $10 or in both sessions for $20.

Clip the 50 cent discount coupon found in today's "Bright Lights," which may be applied toward purchases over one dollar at any of the nine Garden Restaurants ..... One night last week Totie Fields and a party of friends dropped by SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S for dinner and RICHARD TRAINOR, who was hosting at the reservation desk, didn't recognize Miss Fields because she was wearing dark glasses. "Can I have a table?" she asked. Richard's quick remark was, "If you bring it back." Suddenly Totie whipped off her glasses and said, "Richard, don't you recognize me?" The pun forgotten, Richard embraced the famous comedienne and escorted her party to a table. As Miss Fields was leaving, after enjoying a wonderful dinner, she whispered, "Next time, Richard, let me tell the jokes!" Totie opens in Las Vegas in the near future.....Besides a variety of pizzas in three different sizes, you may enjoy a la carte and full course Italian dinners at ROMANO'S ITALIAN RESTAURANT, Rockaway Beach. A great favorite (in season) is Crab Cioppino served with garlic bread..... L. N. BREWER, president of South Bay Ford Truck Sales, in San Jose, hosted a dinner meeting at PHIL LEHR'S STEAKERY on the lower level of the Hilton Tower, in San Francisco.

COMES TO PENINSULA

Erwin Pirolt has been named executive chef at the San Francisco Airport Hilton, where a $4 million expansion program is nearly completed. His duties include overseeing the culinary details of the new Coffee Shop and Dining Room, now open, and the soon to be completed Barronshire specialty restaurant, as well as banquet menus.

Lyle's Restaurant Now Serving Lunch

After being a dinner house only for 25 years, LYLE'S restaurant in South San Francisco announces the Grand Opening of luncheon service. Veal, steaks, spaghetti, fish, soups, salads, sandwiches and much more may now be enjoyed during luncheon, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.....Grilled Abalone Steak served at NICK'S RESTAURANT in Rockaway Beach is one of our special seashore dinners. Add the rest of the full course treatment and you have a "sweetheart" of a meal ..... THE TRI SOUNDS continue to be a musical attraction at the BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno. Owners HARRY CURUSIS and MEL CICERO report business is going full speed ahead. Plenty of room for the dance set to twist, pump and twirl ..... When planning a charter to the Lake Tahoe area, be sure to include a stop-off at BARNEY'S CASINO or the SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET. You'll find "Entertainment the Nevada way" going on all the time. Restaurants in both clubs open 24 hours a day ..... The VILLA HOTEL not only offers round-the-clock food service in the VILLA COFFEE HOUSE, but room service is also available to overnight hotel guests. Ditto, bar service ..... It is getting so now that even counter seating is at a premium at VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD RESTAURANT. And that's during both luncheon and dinner ..... Among the famous people dining at LEHR'S GREENHOUSE garden restaurant in San Francisco last week: Sally Kellerman, star of M.A.S.H., in for lunch, and singer-comedian Martin Mull.

6 in SM Community College District Race

Six persons are running for two seats on the San Mateo County Community College District's board of trustees in the March 8 election.

The six are: Anna Eshoo of Atherton, Robert Heavey of Redwood City, James Rudolph of Menlo Park, Nashelle Scofield of Redwood City, Doris Spafford of Pacifica and Robert Tarver of Hillsborough.

Tarver and Rudolph are incumbents. Rudolph was appointed to fill the seat of Francis Pearson last year. He is running for election for the first time.

Five of the six have agreed to answer a set of three questions submitted by The Times. Heavey did not respond. Here are the questions and the responses of the other five candidates:

1. Recently, the district has begun to consolidate certain courses and programs. Do you see other services, programs, etc., which might be coordinated in this way? Please be specific.

ESHOO: The key to successful education, like industry, is planning. As a board member I would suggest a study of language programs, administration of justice programs, athletic programs, and the staffing of academic programs. At Canada College, for example, German has a declining enrollment. Perhaps German should be eliminated at Canada College and only offered at College of San Mateo. Currently there are studies being conducted by the board to determine how to finance the construction of new swimming pools at Canada and Skyline Colleges. In my judgment, it would be wise to investigate what existing facilities are currently underutilized in the community that may be used to meet these needs. In short, as board member I would insist on thorough planning before tax dollars are spent for new programs and eliminate duplication.

RUDOLPH: A recent decision by the Community College District Board was to consolidate the Aeronautics programs at Skyline and CSM. The board must be advised by its administrative staff on other possible programs. Included in the list should be programs in Administration of Justice, Early Childhood Education, Engineering, and a variety of Community Service offerings. The guidelines should encompass cost-effectiveness of the programs, increased quality and student accessibility (e.g., intercampus bus service, TV classes).

SCOFIELD: To begin with I don't like the consolidation of courses and programs. For example if a student lives in East Palo Alto and wants to take a Tourism class offered only at Skyline campus why should they have to commute that far. If there is to be any consolidation it should be of administrative services. For instance the dean of students could be one person presiding over all three campuses without losing effectiveness.

SPAFFORD: In a county as large as San Mateo and the somewhat inaccessibility (for some people) of two of the three colleges in this district, consolidation of courses would not seem to serve the entire community. In examining the current bulletins of the colleges I do not see that coordination as you state has indeed taken place. Although I did note that Canada represents the CLEP examination center.

TARVER: The board of trustees recently took action to consolidate the district's Airframe and Powerplant mechanics programs into one program at the College of San Mateo. The curriculum will be redesigned and scheduling changes will be effected to maximize the use of facilities, utilize all full-time staff, and to make it possible to accept the greatest number of students. This consolidation demonstrates a concerted effort by the board of trustees to make more efficient use of resources, and I believe this should be encouraged. Similar studies of consolidation have been underway for the past 18 months, and more are planned. It would be premature at this point to identify those programs being studied. However, establishing district-wide priorities for resource allocation and promoting accountability for effective use of resources is one of the major recommendations of the district Educational Program Master Plan which was adopted by the board of trustees.

2. Currently, local high school districts are seeking ways to increase enrollments in their adult schools. Do you feel that this competes with the community college district? What can be done about it?

ESHOO: Since both Adult Education (under Secondary School Districts) and Community College Continuing Education (under the San Mateo County Community College District) are dealing with post secondary education, I favor a co-existence of the two systems with a rational and logical division of responsibilities. This approach would save taxpayers money and eliminate duplication. To achieve this, joint committees of both districts should be formed.

RUDOLPH: Adult education at high schools or colleges is a product of our times, answering a specific need. In the community colleges this impacts the standard curriculum as well as Community Service programs. Fundamentally, the colleges should concentrate on college-level adult training, particularly as it relates to ongoing student programs, while high schools direct their efforts at providing more basic skills training. High school and community college administrations must cooperate in providing relevant programs, and avoid duplication of effort.

SCOFIELD: No, I see no competition of services between the high school's special education programs and the services offered at the community colleges. A good example of this is the community colleges are utilizing the facilities of the high schools at present for weekend and evening classes. I see the availability of these facilities as being an extension of the college campus making more educational opportunities available to a greater part of the community.

SPAFFORD: If such a conflict between high schools and community colleges does in fact exist, it would appear to be inefficient and perhaps the two could be studied for possible coordination. From my experience, people attending adult classes in local high schools and those attending community colleges, are generally seeking different goals. Adult classes usually are aimed to serve multiple purposes, not necessarily offering credited courses. On the other hand, community colleges cover the entire realm from the first two years of credited colleges courses to re-entry students with varied interests.

TARVER: This problem does not only affect San Mateo County — it has been recognized as a statewide problem by leading educators and legislators. In July, 1976, the state legislature created Regional Adult and Vocational Education Councils (RAVEC) to review continuing adult education program offerings and eliminate unnecessary duplication of courses. The San Mateo County RAVEC currently is studying the problem and eventually will make recommendations to the state for funding of these classes. The community college district is represented on the county RAVEC and we will abide by its decisions as to the colleges' roles in providing adult and vocational education classes. I believe that this coordinated, cooperative approach to the problem is laudable and I think it will bring about solutions acceptable to all.

3. Since the state, through the Serrano decision among other things, has begun to take a much stronger stance on school finance, how can your district control its own tax rate? What ways, short of limiting enrollment, can the district cut its budget to save money in light of the state's probable desire to have wealthy districts like this contribute some of its taxes to less affluent districts?

ESHOO: The Serrano v. Priest Decision does not directly affect community colleges in that it is applicable to grades K through 12. However, it indirectly affects community colleges because of the emphasis of the equalization problem of poor and rich districts. The only way that districts such as San Mateo's to limit its finances would be to eliminate certain services or to consider such ideas as tuition. In the final analysis, however, most educators are not quite clear what the ultimate effect Serrano v. Priest will have on financing.

RUDOLPH: Fiscal restraint is a mandate for our college district in the last half of this decade. Its implementation began with administrative reorganization, which provided the mechanism for tight budgetary control. It must be fine-tuned and directed to consider further program consolidation as mentioned, seek new outside funding and eliminates excess or duplicate equipment/facilities for cost savings. The Board must also be more aggressive in seeking cooperative, cost-effective ventures with government agencies and private organizations.

SCOFIELD: First of all, the Serrano-Priest decision affected only the K-12 levels of education. Since Governor Brown has already pledged 3.3 billion dollars to help poorer districts, I don't see how the decision can effect our junior college district. Nearly 85 per cent of our tax dollars come from our district tax payers. I do not see how, the Serrano decision could possibly effect us at this time. As far as my stand on budget cuts, please refer to statements to the League Of Woman Voters, copy enclosed.

SPAFFORD: With regard to question three, I am not aware that the Serrano/Priest ruling would affect the community colleges but rather the decision pertains to the public school system.

TARVER: Although the impact of the Serrano decision on community colleges is not yet known, there is little doubt that there will be an impact. Under new state financing laws, enrollment continues to be the key to maintaining adequate financing for community colleges. It is interesting to note that community colleges in San Mateo County, which are not bound by compulsory attendance laws, have not yet experienced the enrollment decline which has affected elementary and high schools. However, if enrollment should decrease, or even plateau, steps must be taken to cut district costs by consolidating programs or even eliminating those which have outlived their usefulness to our students.

Cutting costs in the operation of the district is a major concern of the board of trustees, and is perhaps the toughest problem we face. Education is a labor intensive industry; there is no way to mechanize or computerize in this business. Over 80 per cent of the district's budget is devoted to personnel costs which are very hard to cut. Salaries, wages and benefits are fixed costs which escalate each year to reflect cost of living increases and yearly salary increases. However, wherever possible, I will continue to encourage fiscal restraint and responsible budget planning.

Insanity Plea by Hinnant

Palm Hinnant, the accused would-be hijacker of a United Airlines DC-8 jetliner last Dec. 21, has entered dual pleas of not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity.

San Mateo County Superior Court Judge Alan W. Haverty appointed psychiatrists Seymour Kolko of San Mateo and Cameron Gray of Palo Alto to examine the 37-year-old Hinnant and to report to him March 1.

The judge also designated that date for a trial setting conference with prosecutor John P. Oakes and defense attorney David Ehmann.

Hinnant, formerly of San Mateo, allegedly took two hostages and held them by force on the airliner for 14 hours before surrendering.

He is charged with kidnaping, extortion, kidnaping for extortion and with bodily harm, assault with a deadly weapon and related charges.

Conviction of kidnaping for extortion or with bodily harm is punishable by life imprisonment without possibility of parole.

ACT Plans Easter Plays

Performance dates are now available for the American Conservatory Theater's Young Conservatory production of "The Medieval Mystery Plays," depicting major events in the life of Jesus.

To celebrate the Easter season, the youthful performers will offer 14 daytime or evening performances from March 13 through April 10.

Each presentation includes seven short Medieval Mystery Plays in a cycle delineating Christ's salvation of mankind.

Western Bottle Collectors Will Show Their Treasures

Peninsula Bottle Collectors of San Mateo County will hold its 10th Annual Antique Bottle Show and Sale Saturday and Sunday, at the San Mateo County Fairgrounds, Building A, on Delaware Street in San Mateo.

Hours are 10 a.m.-6 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Sunday. Admission and parking are free.

The show features beautiful and educational displays of rare old bottles. The displays, set up by local club members and guests from other bottle clubs on the West Coast, will be judged for showmanship, scarcity and educational value.

The bottles seen at the show come from all over the West — from desert ghost towns, from Mother Lode mining camps, from redevelopment projects in San Francisco and on the Peninsula, from under water, via scuba gear, and often from the nearest dump.

Any family can engage in this activity with a minimum outlay of cash.

Tools used are found in every home, a shovel, a cultivator and perhaps a small pick. Put these in the family car, pack a picnic lunch, put on your oldest clothes, and you're all set.

In addition to the exhibits, outstanding museum-quality bottles will be available on the sales tables.

Many well-known California bottle dealers have reserved sales tables.

Three famous personalities in the bottle world will be on hand to judge the displays.

The awards will be presented to the winners at a banquet on Saturday evening.

Entertainment for the awards dinner will be provided by the local club members.

This antique bottle show is the only one of this type held in San Mateo County.

Knights Announce Recruiting Effort

Joseph Capurro, Grand Knight, announced that Marian Council 3773, Knights of Columbus, is participating in a statewide recruitment campaign being conducted by the State Council.

The campaign will culminate on March 13 with an Admission Degree into the Order in San Francisco, which will bring candidates together from all over Northern California.

The campaign is being held in honor of Supreme Knight, Dr. John McDevitt, who is retiring from that office after 13 years of dedication to the Order.

Catholic men over 18 years of age who are interested in joining the Knights of Columbus, which is the largest organization of Catholic men in the United States with a membership in excess of 1,200,000, are asked to contact Thomas Curr, membership chairman, at 355-2306.

Master Class for Strummers Set

The San Francisco Conservatory of Music will present Michael Lorimer in a five-day Guitar Master Class, Feb. 21-25 from 7-10 p.m.

For information regarding the location of the master class sessions and fees, call the Conservatory's Office of Student Services at 564-8086, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Lorimer is one of the world's leading classical guitarists, as well as a distinguished teacher, artist, transcriber and scholar.

In the spring of 1975, he was the first American classical guitarist invited to tour the Soviet Union.

A protege of Segovia, Lorimer is an expert in Baroque literature as well as a proponent of contemporary works for the guitar.

He is a member of the Guitar Faculty at The San Francisco Conservatory of Music in addition to a full schedule of master classes and concerts throughout the country.

Improvisers to Present Matinee for Children

A group concerned with world hunger will meet Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Martin's Episcopal Church, 777 Southgate Ave., Daly City.

A 45-minute film on "Hunger in America" will be shown.

The group will learn about a proposed international food reserve system.

To find out what a "World Food Reserve" is all about, attend this meeting in the church library and subsequent meetings on the third Thursday of each month.

ARRIVED

U. S. Air Force T/Sgt. Pedro Masangcay Jr., whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Masangcay Sr. of 9 Shakespeare St., Daly City, has arrived for duty at Yokota AB, Japan.

Sgt. Masangcay, a computer operator with a unit of the Pacific Air Forces, previously served at Edwards AFB.

The sergeant is a 1962 graduate of Polytechnic High School, San Francisco. His wife, Erlinda, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Pangilini of San Francisco.

Hearing Slated on Bus Fares

A public hearing Feb. 23 in Redwood City will deal with three separate fare issues facing the San Mateo County Transit District.

Commute fares will be determined for north-south service proposed under the contract with Greyhound.

Directors also will consider new youth fare proposals, and determine costs for riders of the district's new Redi-Wheels program for seniors and handicapped.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. in the County Supervisors' Chambers, Hall of Justice.

Church Sets Movie on U.S. Hunger

Improvisation, Inc. will present a special matinee performance for children on Sunday, at 149 Powell St., San Francisco.

The show will be one hour in length and will be held at 2 p.m.

Admission price is $1 for children and $2 for parent or accompanying adult.

Call 397-5534 for information and reservations.

Improvisation, Inc., long a pioneer in the exploration of spontaneous theater, has adapted its style and format for the young audience.

Story, song, mime and fable flourish in an atmosphere of interaction between audience and actors.

Suggestion-giving further involves the youngster in the performance.

SM County Eyes Big Savings

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors has forwarded to Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. a list of $22 million worth of state mandated programs which are financed by the local property tax rate and which the board feels should be shifted to state or federal financing.

The list was prepared at the request of the governor, who last December asked each county board of supervisors to provide a detailed list of all mandated programs which could reasonably be eliminated or modified by the state.

The governor asked for the information for consideration in formulating a property tax reform proposal.

The largest program cost the county wants assumed by the state is the more than $9 million a year the county is required to pay as its share of Medi-Cal costs.

In the board's report to the governor, it is noted that counties have no local control over the Medi-Cal program, and that the county's share is increased by law each year on the basis of an increase in assessed valuation which is not correlated to the actual cost increase in the program.

Under the present system, the report says, San Mateo County faces an estimated $2 million increase in its Medi-Cal share for 1977-78.

The board said it feels the state should increase its share of basic public health subsidy from the some 5 per cent it now pays to a ratio which would take care of $3.1 million of the present county cost of $3.4 million.

It also is recommended that the state and federal governments assume some $7 million in costs for other required health and welfare programs which currently are financed from the property tax.

In addition, if new state seismic standards are imposed for upgrading the "new" wing of Chope Community Hospital, the state should bear the $2 million cost, the board said.

The board also suggests a three-point plan to reduce election costs of $250,000 a year, recommending that:

• There be elimination of voter registration and implementation of a proposed voter identification at the polls. Through such a plan a person could vote by presenting identification establishing his or her residency in the precinct at the time of election.

• The mailing of sample ballot information be discontinued and the distribution of such information be handled through newspaper publication, such as an election supplement which would also be made available at public offices.

• The requirement to publish the lists of names of precinct board members and polling places be eliminated.

Boat Tax Changes Opposed

The San Mateo County Board of Supervisors has gone on record as opposing Assemblyman Dixon Arnett's bill (AB 130) which would change the assessment procedures for boats and would result in a tax revenue loss of $399,273 to cities, school districts and special districts in the county.

In a report to the board, management analyst Virginia Toney reported that total tax revenue generated in the county on the assessed valuation of boats in 1976-77 was $483,955. The county received $95,539, and the balance went to cities and school and special districts.

Under Arnett's bill, boats would be taxed at 1.5 per cent of market value, providing $313,638 in revenue. The county would receive 30 per cent of 90 per cent, or $84,682, and the state Department of Navigation and Ocean Development (DNOD) would receive 70 per cent of 90 per cent. Ten per cent of the income would go to administer the program.

Since the county netted only $54,539 on the program for the current fiscal year because of $41,000 in administration costs, it will gain in net revenue under the proposed change.

SSF Proposes New Site

'Severe Reservations' Greet Power Plant Plan

By JANET PARKER

A Pacific Gas and Electric Co. proposal to build a power plant near South San Francisco's Oyster Point Marina won little support at a hearing in San Francisco this week.

However, interest was expressed in a possible new site.

At a meeting of the state Energy Resources Conservation and Development Commission, City Planner Bill Costanzo said South San Francisco officials have "severe reservations" about the power plant proposal.

Even the Energy Commission's counsel, Richard Frank, expressed some doubt about the feasibility of the Oyster Point site. Frank noted that PG&E has allowed its option to buy the site to expire. He questioned whether the utility company is serious about building on that site.

In fact, energy commission staff members appeared interested in South San Francisco's proposal that PG&E consider an alternate site, the Belle Air Island property near the United Airlines maintenance base.

Costanzo said later that he felt "very positive about the meeting." He said he believes the energy commissioner at the meeting was concerned about South San Francisco's apprehensions.

In fact, South San Francisco was invited to officially intervene in the hearings, allowing cross examination of PG&E representatives. Costanzo said he didn't know if that offer will be accepted.

South San Francisco officials became alarmed late last year when they learned that PG&E had proposed a 400,000 kilowatt combined cycle (gas turbine and steam turbine) power plant at one of four sites — Oyster Point, Visitacion Point in Brisbane, Potrero Power Plant in San Francisco and a site in North San Jose.

A committee of the state commission is holding 14 hearings in the Bay Area during February concerning the proposal. The hearings will be followed by an 18-month period for public input.

If the commission finally approves at least one site, PG&E must file another application with the state and another 18-month hearing period will begin.

Construction is not expected to begin until 1980.

However, Costanzo revealed Tuesday that the entire issue may be moot as far as South San Francisco is concerned.

A prospective developer has nearly completed plans to purchase the site near the city's marina, he said, adding that he expects to have more information by the end of the week.

If the land is purchased by a private developer, PG&E may not get the opportunity to build a power plant there, Costanzo said.

The planner said at the hearing in San Francisco on Monday that South San Francisco's Planning Commission and City Council find the power plant "marginally acceptable."

"The City Council and the Planning Commission had severe reservations concerning the possible establishment of this facility at Oyster Point," Costanzo said.

In particular, city officials are concerned that the proposed use would clash with the neighboring $6 million Oyster Point Marina expansion.

Costanzo said that if Oyster Point is selected, city officials will insist that:

• Steam from a planned 60-foot cooling tower be eliminated "to the extent possible."

• All electrical transmission lines and towers be prohibited from crossing "Sierra Point," Highway 101, Old Bayshore Highway and the south slope of San Bruno Mountain.

• PG&E be required to obtain formal use permit approval from the City of South San Francisco.

If PG&E attempted to avoid use permit procedures, the city could seek legal action to enjoin them, Costanzo said.

The planner also told the state commissioner that the City Council strongly recommends that PG&E investigate the Belle Air Island property as an alternate location.

Costanzo said the land is entirely surrounded by water except for a narrow access road, giving it a high degree of security.

The 35-acre site is located adjacent to the city's sewage treatment plant and it might be possible to use treatment plant water for cooling at the power plant, Costanzo added.

Testimony at the hearing on Monday revealed that the cooling tower originally proposed at 60 feet would be as tall as perhaps 150 feet to conform with air pollution control regulations.

Rival Channel Enters Picture

College Trustees Want TV Guide

By JOHN HORGAN

All of a sudden, the College of San Mateo and its television station, KCSM, are in the middle of a ratings war.

That is interesting because most viewers in San Mateo County can't even get KCSM, Channel 14, on their TV sets. The signal is just too weak.

And that's where the struggle comes in.

Channel 60, a Spanish-language station in San Francisco, wants to swap channels with Channel 14.

In the bargain, Channel 60 would provide Channel 14 with color capability, a stronger signal and other amenities worth an estimated $400,000.

CSM could use that $400,000 in equipment as matching money for a federal grant worth another $400,000.

KCSM would then possess Channel 60's spot at the end of the UHF dial. And vice versa.

At least that's been the plan. Until Wednesday night, when a rival Spanish-language station, Channel 20, tried to toss a ringer into the whole proposal.

Rene De La Rosa, vice president of KEMO, Channel 20, told the trustees of the San Mateo County Community College District, of which CSM is a part, that they would be making a grave mistake in switching channels with Channel 60.

De La Rosa alleged that viewers have a difficult time receiving Channel 60. He said Channel 60's antenna wasn't up to snuff, he rapped the district administration's cost estimates for operating the color station and he generally flayed the whole concept of the swap.

However, Channel 20 is in direct competition with Channel 60. This was pointed out by several speakers.

Chief engineer George Ledoux of Channel 60 rebutted De La Rosa's charges until the trustees asked that the argument be stopped so that everyone at the meeting could catch their breath and take stock of what had transpired.

"There are some commercial rivalries here," offered Chancellor Glenn Smith.

Several trustees said they wanted De La Rosa's statements checked out. The administration promised that they would be.

Earlier, the administration had provided the trustees with projected income and cost figures for a five-year period for a color operation at CSM.

It was estimated that the station could get past the break-even point in the second year of transition.

By the fifth year, 1981-82, it was projected that the district could be serving 750 full-time equivalent students via Channel 60 (not Channel 14), with operating costs of just over $400,000.

Another $325,000 would be pumped back into development of TV courses.

All of that would be covered by income generated by the programs and by course rentals, studio rentals, broadcasting grants, etc.

"Can we afford not to have it," asked Smith, noting that the future of community college finance in California is cloudy at best.

The trustees indicated they are anxious to resolve the Channel 14 question once and for all because it has vexed them for more than a year.

The station, with its weak signal, its black and white picture (if and when you can get it) and its other ills, is targeted for elimination unless it can be improved dramatically.

Since the district has a chance to secure the $400,000 federal grant, coupled with the enticing Channel 60 swap, the trustees and administration have been trying to reach some conclusions as soon as possible.

Board President James Tormey has told his colleagues flatly that, for him, "it's an all or nothing proposition." Either the station goes all the way to color and full power or it's done away with entirely.

De La Rosa's comments just gave the trustees more reason to question the complicated plan.

They will consider this web of proposals, charges, counter-charges, data and projections at their next meeting.

It will be held at 8:15 p.m. Feb. 23 at Skyline College in San Bruno.

How to Be Assertive

A Monday evening class on "assertiveness and communication" is being offered by the San Mateo Union High School Adult School at the Northpark Apartments, 1080 Carolan Ave., Burlingame.

The class, taught by Naomi Glasson, M.S., licensed marriage, family and child counselor, meets from 7 p.m.to 10 p.m. Information may be obtained at the administrative offices of the adult school at Burlingame High School.

'Lone Ranger' in Robbery

One man wearing a Lone Ranger mask and another with a handkerchief draped across his face robbed Round Table Pizza in Hillsdale Mall, San Mateo, Tuesday night.

The two robbers entered the pizza parlor at 11:40 p.m. as the cook prepared to close the restaurant.

Armed with an automatic pistol, the robbers forced the cook to an upstairs restroom and tied and bound the victim.

The robbers, described as two young white men wearing raincoats, ran off with all the cash from the register.

Chope Staff in Reply to Pickett

The medical staff at Chope Community Hospital believes benefits can be maximized, and risks minimized in a centralized health care system for San Mateo County's indigent residents.

So stated Dr. A.R. Hotti, a medical staff member, to the County Board of Supervisors in Redwood City today as the staff began presentation of its critique of County Director of Health and Welfare Dr. George Pickett's recommended plan for a decentralized health care system which would entail the closing of Chope Hospital as an acute medical and surgical facility.

Hotti stated that last July the hospital staff met with Pickett and agreed to join in developing the positions for both systems in an objective manner and "let the chips fall where they may."

However, he said, after last August "all useful contact between the medical staff and the Health and Welfare Department was lost.

"No effort was made to involve the medical staff in the analysis, nor did we have benefit of the data as it became available."

He said that a hospital consultant, Gordon Cumming of Sacramento, hired to aid in the design of a health care system had no substantive meetings involving the medical staff, and that "it appears that the proponents of decentralized care occupied most of Mr. Cumming's time."

In its critique, the medical staff asserts that there are errors in content in Pickett's recommendation referring to the nature and practices of the Chope Hospital system.

For example, Hotti stated, Pickett's report says a higher level of care in other hospitals is needed because a private doctor-patient relationship (at Chope) is not well developed.

"This statement is inaccurate and shows a bias or a lack of understanding by the authors," Hotti said.

To the contrary, the physician stated, "doctor-patient relationships are well developed and encouraged at Chope. As in any system of health care, the primary determinants of the doctor-patient relationship are the doctor and the patient, and not the system."

Hotti acknowledges that patients may have left the county hospitals with the advent of Medi-Cal and Medicare. However, he said, Medi-Cal and Medicare are failing to meet the needs of the disadvantaged, and patients are returning to the county to obtain their care.

Hotti said that outpatient visits and hospital admissions are increasing at Chope by about six per cent a year.

He added that the League of Woman Voters' report suggests that there is a large population of underinsured, underserved persons in North County. And, he said, there is no indication that Medi-Cal reimbursements to private physicians will increase this next year.

"All this information supports the notion that county health care resources will be under pressure to increase services," Hotti said.

Increased activity at Chope will necessarily increase costs to the county, but increased cost can to some extent be offset by revenue generated by inpatient services and to some extent by administrative cost control procedures within the hospital, Hotti contended.

Decentralized care gives up the best revenue-producing services (inpatient care) and continues to provide outpatient services realizing only 19 to 20 per cent revenue, he stated.

"As services increase, net county costs could accumulate faster in the decentralized system than in the centralized system," Hotti asserted. "The only hope of controlling costs in the decentralized system would be to reduce services and care, or shift the risk to other providers."

Hotti said the medical staff feels there are three major assumptions in Pickett's decentralized care proposal that are questionable:

• "The report assumes that the community physicians and clinics will now accept the indigent patients that they were not able to accept previously.

"This is in fact a contradiction. The access team of decentralized care must continuously bend its efforts to enable this assumption to become operative.

"This is not a natural flow of patients but a contrived one — one that is in continual danger of breakdown. The energies or weaknesses of members of the access team can mean the difference between easy or difficult referrals.

• "The report assumes that the experience of the decentralized program in its first year of operation is a reliable predictor of future costs and services required.

"We submit that the combined experience of Chope and the (South County) Demonstration Project is a better predictor of the future.

• "The report assumes that a health insurance program (Modified Repayment Program) patterned after Medi-Cal with eligibility, prior authorization, scope of benefits and services can repair the ills caused by Medi-Cal.

"This, once again, is a contradiction. It may have a temporary period of bloom as long as the county pays the going community rates, but will not, in the long run, solve the problem.

"Like Medi-Cal, the MRP program cannot guarantee care to the medically needy as costs escalate."

The medical staff critique concludes with the observation that, "In this time of rising health care costs and increasing pressures on the citizenry, it is time to evaluate seriously the strengths and weaknesses of existing resources and develop greater efficiencies in delivering health care.

"In this time of increasing need, the county should be taking a leadership role to provide more services at less cost.

"With continued increasing utilization, we believe this is possible in a hospital-based, centralized system."

Pacifica Recall Unit Could Have Had More Time, Says City Aide

Pacifica's now defunct Recall Committee has learned that if it had handed City Manager-Clerk Don Weidner any of the recall petitions on Monday, he would have granted them a 10-day extension to obtain more signatures.

In other words, the committee to recall Mayor Janice Fulford and Councilmen Mark Savage and Sidney Lovan actually had until Feb. 18 to gather enough signatures to force a recall election.

The three committee leaders went to Weidner's office at 4:15 p.m. Monday and told him they didn't have enough signatures.

They had gathered 2,878 signatures to recall Mrs. Fulford and slightly less on petitions against Savage and Lorvan.

They needed, according to Weidner, 3,788 signatures on each of the three petitions.

With a deadline set at 5 p.m. Monday, the Recall Committee conceded without handing over the petitions.

However, Weidner said later that he and City Atty. Gloria Scheid had interpreted that 1977 laws regulating recalls allow for 10 extra days if it appears an insufficient number of signatures were gathered.

Recall Chairwoman Betty Wilson said Wednesday that Weidner's interpretation of the law was in conflict with the advice of the committee's own attorneys.

Weidner didn't volunteer the information. None of the recall committee members asked his opinion concerning the 10-day extension provision, she said.

Mrs. Wilson said Weidner was derelict in his duties if he knew about the extension and withheld the information.

"It's just another little ploy on their part," Mrs. Wilson said. "I don't believe a word of it."

Weidner had mentioned in explanations to the press before the deadline that an extension provision did exist.

"If he said it to the press, why couldn't he have said it to us?" Mrs. Wilson said.

"I think we pay his wages," she said. "He owed it to us as city clerk."

Does SP Owe $40 Million?

Does the Southern Pacific railroad owe the state of California $38 million to $40 million for breach of a 113-year-old contract?

Assemblyman Louis J. Papan, D-Daly City, and his staff, searching for another club in a 2 ½-year fight with SP over a proposed 111 per cent Peninsula commute rate increases, think SP might owe the money.

Their optimism is based on a Jan. 31 memorandum from state Attorney General Evelle J. Younger saying that because SP contracted its passenger train service to Amtrak in 1971 it violated an 1864 agreement that called for free transportation of:

• Any public messengers;

• Convicts going to the state prison;

• "Lunatics" headed for the state insane asylum;

• Articles for exhibit at fairs of the State Agricultural Society;

• State troops in time of war;

• Materials for construction of the state capitol.

Because the situation may result in litigation, Younger declined to list an amount due or whether or not the state might require repayment of the interest paid under the April 4, 1864 act under which the state would pay the interest on a $2 million loan in return for the listed concessions by the Central Pacific Railroad, predecessor of the SP.

Papan's staff had calculated the $38 million to $40 million figure, but admitted it was only a rough estimate of the interest accrued over the years.

He suggested "one nice concession" from SP as part of any settlement would be for the railroad to turn over its unused right of way from Daly City to San Bruno, the old 40 Line, which studies have described as ideal for any future public rail, bus or car transportation between the Daly City BART station and the Peninsula.

"I'd just as soon get something constructive," Papan chuckled today, noting that he preferred such things as rights of way and stable commute fares to just collecting money.

He said his staff had sent letters last week to the departments involved with the transportations of messengers, prisoners, mental patients and troops asking them to check their archives to see if they ever had been charged for these by SP.

"We hope to hear in a week," he said. If it is found that any such costs were paid by the state, Papan added, he would ask the attorney general's office to sue SP.

Amtrak apparently was not bound by the 1864 contract, but SP still is, Younger's opinion contended, citing court precedents.

The original law had been intended to foster construction of the railroad and involved some major state concessions for the time, including what amounted to a subsidy through the interest on the loan.

Younger held, however, that the provisions for hauling of materials for the state capitol and State Agricultural Society were not valid since their purpose had been accomplished.

The capitol was completed by 1874 and an interpretation of its language and intent wouldn't support a contention that SP must haul materials for a current restoration project, Younger said.

The agricultural society was supplanted by the California State Fair and Exposition in 1953 and any mention of the society officially dropped from the law books in 1973, which terminated any duty by SP in this regard, the attorney general stated.

Low-Cost Health Plan Revealed

A bill creating a program of low-cost insurance to protect Californians against the economic ruin of catastrophic illness or injury was introduced in Sacramento today by Assemblyman Dixon Arnett, R-Redwood City.

The bill is a modified version of one which the Assembly passed last session, but which died in the Senate.

Protection would be offered by employers upgrading their existing group insurance plans, with employe participation on a voluntary basis, Arnett said.

The legislator said the California Medical Association, sponsor of the bill, predicts that premium costs would average less than $50 a year for an individual and $110 per family.

The plan would cover all health care costs exceeding an annual threshold of $5,000 for an individual or $7,500 for a family.

"The 'threshold' costs could be met, wholly or partially, by payments from the patient's individual basic health insurance, his employer's group insurance plan or by his own funds," Arnett said.

Other provisions of the proposed measure include a stipulation that no medical examination would be required to qualify for catastophic health insurance, as well as defined areas of coverage.

Roofer Falls From Ladder

A roofing company employe working at El Rancho Motel, 1100 El Camino Real, Millbrae, was injured when he fell from a ladder.

Police and firemen rushed to the scene. The injured man, identified as William "Bill" Hickok, an employe of Ace Roofing Co., was taken to Peninsula Hospital for treatment of lacerations, bruises and possibly other injuries. Hospital aides said they did not expect Hickok would be admitted.

The winners of the recent Serramonte freshmen and sophomore class elections are Freshmen President Genny Hom; Vice President Pamela Jackson, Secretary Kathleen Gonzalo, and Treasurer Carol Ann Hall.

Elected sophomore officers are President Daria Wiggins, Vice President Kim Daly, Secretary Imogene Mamoe, and Treasurer Diana Law.

On Feb. 5, two teachers and six students who are members of Serramonte's 10-speed bicycle club, the Sprockets, made their annual Century Ride of 100 miles to Inverness and Point Reyes in a 10 hour period.

Five of the eight riders have been in training for over a month, riding to school each day and then riding 10 miles in the afternoons.

The Sprocket riders met at the Westlake fire station at 6:45 a.m. on the morning of their ride, made a quick trip around Lake Merced, and then were off to cross the Golden Gate Bridge and continue to Inverness and Point Reyes for a total of 100 miles.

Greg Domingues completed the trip in six hours and 17 minutes to break all previous Sprocket records. Next to finish the course was Matt Bugler with 6 hours 40 minutes, teachers R. Rinne and L. Silberman with 7 hours 35 minutes, and Brent Burgess and Steve Daly with 9 hours.

Other riders were Jim Unsworth and Kevin Goodwin.

AN ADDITIONAL gymnasium that has been added to Serramonte High School has some spectacular features.

It has an overhead tumbling and trampoline belt which is supported by a pully system as well as six hanging ropes for rope climbing classes.

The gym offers an opportunity to expand the boys' gymnastic program because it includes a support system for men's horizontal bars as well as still gymnastic rings.

Other changes and additions in the P.E. department are enlarged locker rooms, additional lockers new equipment rooms and a mirrored dance room.

AUDITIONS FOR the Serramonte Drama Department's production of "West Side Story" will be held Feb. 24 and 25 after school in the Little Theater. All Serramonte students as well as Serramonte alumni and other students in the district are encouraged to audition.

Anyone can be a star! For more information, contact the director, Ms. Diane Streeter.

SERRAMONTE'S newest teacher is Art Hermosillo, a graduate of Jefferson High School.

He has taught at Jefferson, Terra Nova, and Oceana, and is now teaching p.e. and social science at Serramonte.

HOW WOULD YOU like to see Rome, Florence, Paris, Amsterdam, London and the Swiss Alps?

A group of Serramonte students are going to Europe this summer with the Foriegn Study League and will visit all these places.

The advisor for the Serramonte students' summer excursion is assistant principal-guidance Mrs. Laurie Cahill. For more information, call 992-9555.

"ARNOLD" a comedy-horror movie, is coming to Serramonte's Little Theater on Feb. 17 at 2:30 p.m. The movie is sponsored by the Black Student Union and the tickets are $1.

Auto Repair Manuals Outsell Most Titles

Samuel Chandler

They are best-sellers!

So popular, in fact, that libraries have waiting lists for each title and book stores cannot keep them in stock. The auto repair manuals outsell most titles in fiction and non-fiction alike.

There's "Chilton's Auto Repair Manual"; "Foreign Car Repair Manual" and "Truck and Van Repair Manual." The Chilton Book Company publishes them "to fill a special need . . . to appeal to the trained craftsman and the layman, to the high school student, to the college student, or to someone studying at a craft colony."

"Chilton's Auto Repair Manual: American Cars" is like money in the bank. It's a big book of goodness with two divisions, "The Car Section" and the "Unit Repair Section." The latter contains trouble shooting and overhaul procedures for the major component systems of your car. The former is arranged by manufacturers, then by model and then by components.

SO HERE'S HOW it works. If your car is giving you fits, say it is misfiring and you do not know the cause of the problem, you go to the "Troubleshooting" portion of the "Unit Repair Section" to find the cause and its remedy. Then turn to the proper car section to find the procedure for removing the part that needs repair. After you have removed it turn to the proper chapter in the "Unit Repair Section" and follow the steps listed there.

"Chilton's Foreign Car Repair Manual" is arranged by the make of the car and then by components. Each components section tells how to remove and install the part, how to repair it and how to maintain it. Each section is replete with illustrations and with cautions that if followed prevent costly mistakes.

The "Truck and Van Repair Manual" is arranged in three sections, "Truck Service," "General Repair" and "Transmission." The "General Repair Section" is, in turn, divided by components such as electrical, brake, engine, axles, etc.

Someone has said that the end result of using the Chilton's manuals "is less demand on your pocket book and a better environment for all of us."

Many people who repair cars swear by the manuals published by "Motor, The Automotive Business Magazine." Motor's "1977 Auto Repair Manual" is in its 40th edition. It is published to combine "for ready reference and ease of use the car maintenance and repair facts from over 300 factory manuals." It contains two sections: "Car Information" and "General Service Information." The first is arranged alphabetically by manufacturers and is devoted to specific technical data and repair procedures. The latter contains component systems that are shared by several car makers . . . Here you will find procedures for keeping your car in running condition.

THE VERY KEY to using the "Motor Auto Repair Manual" is contained in a publishers note which reads, "to get full benefit from the enormous amount of information in this book, please take a few moments to learn how it is organized to put specific facts and procedures at your fingertips."

Other than the "Auto Repair Manual," Motor publishes these other titles: the "Truck Repair Manual," "Auto Engines and Electrical Systems" and the "Automobile Trouble Shooter."

There are other automobile repair manuals that cover the same subject matter as the Chilton and the Motor manuals. Such books are reviewed by automobile mechanics with such terms as "comprehensive," "a must for every up-to-date auto service collection" and "practical guides."

MOVIE-MAKING (Dave Dornias Photo)

Seniors To Meet

The Daly City Chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) will meet on Valentine's Day at the Westlake Community Center, 145 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City.

The business meeting will start at noon, with a social hour preceding it.

Members are invited to take a bag lunch and coffee, and cake will be served for 25 cents.

A representative from the Telephone Company will give a talk.

Sneak Preview Set For Founder's Day

Station T.E.P.T.A. is offering a chance of a lifetime to sneak preview the pilot show of, "Your Not Welcomed Back Rotter."

It stars some of Thomas Edison school's most famous staff, parent and student personalities and is produced, written and directed by the Founder's Day team of Caroline Futrell and Esther MacRunnels.

The show for the JESD Network is on Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. in the Thomas Edison multi-use room.

To add to the festivities, Thomas Edison PTA is sponsoring a gourmet spaghetti dinner to be served from 6-6:45 p.m., in the multi-use room.

Prices for the dinner are as follows: adult $1.75; students 6-16 years, $1.00; and under 6 years, 50 cents.

Immediately following the dinner will be the annual presentation of the Honorary Service awards to be capped off with the evening's entertainment.

Lunch Theme

San Francisco "Her"-itage is the theme of the Luncheon and Fashion Show which is being sponsored by the Ignatian Guild of Saint Ignatius College Preparatory on March 12 in Carlin Commons on the campus, 2001-37th Ave., San Francisco.

Champagne and hors d'oeurves will be served at 11:30 a.m. with luncheon following at 12:30 p.m. Fashions will be provided by Rodina Mendessolle of Stonestown.

General Chairwomen of the event are Mrs. Laurence McCaffrey and Mrs. Martin Ruane Jr.

Mrs. Patrick Ryan and Mrs. Francis Mullen are in charge of hostesses Mrs. John McNulty and Mrs. James Kearney have selected the mothers who will model the fashions and Mrs. Patrick Kelly and Mrs. Thomas Kearney Sr. have ideas for decorating Carlin Commons. Mrs. Giles Miller and Mrs. William Lopez have arranged for the lunch.

Father Harry V. Carlin, S.J. is the guild moderator. Reservations at $10 a person may be sent to Ignatian Guild. P.O. Box 22218, San Francisco, California, 94122.

For further information, call Mrs. L. Thomas Hehir Jr. at 566-5046.

GIRL SCOUTING

THINKING DAY, an International Girl Scout holiday, will be celebrated in Daly City with individual troop programs. The birthday of the founders of Scouting is Feb. 22.

CADETTES and Senior Girl Scouts will swim Thursday night Feb. 17 from 7-9 p.m. at the Jefferson High School pool.

Girls must have a green Girl Scout permission slip and one adult pool watcher for each 12 girls.

BROWNIE Troop 1608 meeting at Daniel Webster School recently performed a play about the Brownie name and invested new members. The troop is led by Mrs. Lyn Pelot and Sandie Whipley.

Susan Rystan, Antoinette Baccei, Lori Farrell and Laurel Schachter were invested. Tracy Schmidt, Susan Gonzales, Christine Peterson, Cheryl Wood, Christine Peterson, Kristin Whelpley and Maribel Solorzano presented the flag ceremony.

Parents and friends of the girls attended and were served refreshments.

Intruder Attacks

A 64-year-old Broadmoor woman was slashed on the arm when she confronted a burglar inside her home at 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

The woman was not identified by police.

According to police, the woman returned home to find a middle-aged man rummaging through her home.

When she confronted him, the man brandished a pocketknife and slashed at the victim as he pushed past her in an effort to get out of the house.

Sneakers Peninsula Lifestyle?

By JOHN HORGAN

You shouldn't wear sandals to a wedding.

It's not polite to sport sneakers at your sister's graduation.

But it's done around here. It may not be pretty but it's a fact of life.

Suburbia has a way of luring a person into the most casual of footwear.

It must be the lifestyle on the Peninsula that does it.

I, for one, have a continual problem choosing from an array of shoes and other items in my closet.

Bare feet are acceptable in only certain situations. It's difficult to get served at even the meanest of restaurants when you are barefoot.

For years, I could get away with wearing informal footwear.

It was a rare day that I found myself wearing wingtips.

But, in the last several months, the need for a really decent pair of shoes became pressing.

I had to find something snappy, something made of leather, something besides jogging shoes and Converse All Stars.

That's what led me down the garden path to a pair of high-heeled leather boots.

I have never worn anything quite like them.

I feel like Jose Greco when I walk down Third Avenue in San Mateo at lunch time, my heels clicking along the pavement.

Not only is the added height a factor, but the noise is terrific.

If I see a table top I have this mad urge to leap aboard and tap dance my way into the hearts of the luncheon crowd.

Fortunately, I have resisted this notion. But it hasn't been easy.

These boots were made for dancing, sir.

When I first tried them on, I listed forward like some kind of drunken buffoon.

People in the shoe store laughed at me, but I persevered. I learned how to walk all over again.

Stairs can still be a problem for me, however. I have to walk down them sideways to avoid a catastrophe with those heels.

A physician friend informed that such shoes were going to be bad for my feet, that they would strain my Achilles tendon in the long run.

I told him I didn't plan to run. At that point, I could hardly walk, let alone run.

Still, with practice, the boots became part of me. Maybe that's because I have a hard time getting them off. The zippers aren't all that they're cracked up to be.

My daughter thinks my boots are still a bit odd. My wife says there is no room in our house for a rhinestone cowboy, sans lariat.

I told her to take off her wingtips and give my boots a whirl.

But I fell down the stairs before I could take them off.

I may resurrect those 1965 wingtips after all.

USF — That's the University of San Francisco Dons — is scary. Not because, as this is written, it is undefeated and ranked first among collegiate basketball teams nationally . . . no, not because of what it is, but because of what it can become.

The nucleous of USF, it seems, is made up of three sophomores — Bill Cartwright, James Hardy and Winford Boynes — who are so talented, that when the Dons went 22-8 last season, most fans were disappointed because they had figured the Dons to be tops in the nation when the Big Three were only freshmen.

So it does rattle the imagination to think of what USF could be in '79, when the Big Three has matured and played together for three years (providing the NBA hardship draft is stored in the ball rack).

HOW COACH Bob Gaillard managed to snare and harness the three has been called by many USF watchers the greatest salesmanship job of the past half century. The more cynical claim that it was easy, the moment that the Padres on the Hill agreed to mortgage the chapel as a down payment on them.

No doubt, they did come with some credentials. All three were consensus high school All-Americans; Boynes and Cartwright twice each. Cartwright was the most publicized high school player in the country two years ago. How publicized was he? Try being featured in "Sports Illustrated" and appearing on national television before he received his high school diploma.

On the other hand, it is said that Boynes was the most sought-after prep player. He not only made All-American twice, he, from his freshman through senior years, was named "Oklahoma City Player of the Year," and was selected for eight, count 'em, eight post season prep all star games.

But, say the experts, Hardy was the most SPACTACULAR of the three, the most potentially awesome.

Are you ready for the "bad" years they had last season?

BOYNES, a high school forward (which, he believes, is his natural position), played swing man, but still managed to lead the team in scoring (18.1), come in second in assists and third in rebounds. He became the first freshman to ever be named Northern California Player of the Year.

He was All-Northern California, All-WCAC, All-District-8, Second Team UPI All-Pacific Coast, All West Coast Honorable Mention (Basketball Weekly"), Newcomer All American (The Gold Sheet"), Newcomer All District - 8 ("The Gold Sheet); was named the MVP in the Cable Car Classic and to the all-tourney teams in three other "classics," and, believe it or not, others but I'm getting bored with it.

Cartwright made first team All-WCAC freshman team, second team All-WCAC, second team All-Northern California, and UPI All-Pacific Coast honorable mention. He also made several Far West sectional teams, including "Street & Smith's" fifth team all-America squad.

Hardy, last year's leading team rebounder, made the first team All-WCAC Freshman Team, second team All-WCAC, All-Northern California Honorable Mention and all-tourney in two "classics." All this, and Hardy had to make the switch from center, where he had played all through high school, to forward.

ALL VERY impressive. But what really makes USF scary, in our humble opinion, are the four or five relatively unheralded players who play with and behind the Big Trhee. For if the Big Tree are the sum of USF, the "Unkonwns" are the substance.

Both starting guards — John "Chubby" Cox and Rod Williams — are only juniors and have been bright stars in their own rights, having been prep All-Americans, themselves. Cox is the Villanova (where he was a regular for two years and the leading rebounder and scorer as a freshman) transfer who is credited with adding the missing dimension for USF — leadership and playmaking ability.

Williams, from Hillsdale High, saw quite a bit of action as a freshman, and pretty well broke into the starting lineup once the WCAC season rolled along last year.

Once in the regular lineup, he established himself as a zone-breaker, probably the best "pure" outside shooter on the team, as attested to by the fact that he averaged 18.1 points last year per 40 minutes played (the equivalent of a full game), even though he was employed primarily as a playmaker and took mainly perimeter shots. But here's what's more interesting about Williams.

Even though Cox has surely become the "glue" of the team with his playmaking and has garnered enough publicity in that role to sort of shove Williams into the background, Williams is averaging 7.1 assists and 14.7 points for every 40 minutes played this year, to Cox's 6.9 assists and 13.6 points.

ADD ANOTHER junior guard, Sam Williams, who was out much of last season and has been out most of this season with injuries, but who was a scoring-record All-State prep and junior college standout; and senior Allen Thompson, a 6-2 man who jumps like a 6-9 player and who was good enough to be a starter early last season, and it is easy to see why the Dons, now that Boynes has been playing mostly in the backcourt this year, are as awesome back there as they are up front.

But that isn't all. Consider Marlon Redmond, the senior from Balboa High, an unrecruited walk-on.Here's a guy who would be THE star on most collegiate basketball teams, but who was asked, after having made second team All Northern California, first team All-WCAC, honorable mention UPI All-Pacific Coast and All-West Coast as a guard, to switch to forward this year.

Last year Redmond was USF's third leading scorer and fourth best rebounder, in terms of what he averaged a game. But considering what he did every 40 minutes, he averaged 20.6 points as against leading scorer Boynes' 20.1, and this year he's averaging 24.4 per 40 minutes as against official leading scorer Cartwright's 24.1. And, he's averaging 10 rebounds every 40 minutes, which puts him third behind only Cartrwight (10.9 every 40) and Hardy (13.2)

SO WE HAVE, here, a kid who will end his career seventh among the top all-time Don scorers, who is one of the more versatile Dons of all -time, and he gets relatively little recognition.

Consider, also Jeff Randall, the senior forward who started for two years and was then "beat out" when the Big Three rolled in. Another prep All-American, but he comes off the bench. Although Hardy gathered in the most total rebounds last season Randall actually led him in rebounds per 40 minutes, as he grabbed 11.7 to Hardy's 11.6. This year, Randall is averaging 11.3. Despite his "small" stature (6-7) Randell is again outrebounding Cartwright, who averaged 9.8 per 40 last year, and has 10.9 this season.

That is the sum and substance of the University of San Francisco Dons. And with only three seniors departing (Redmond, Randall,Thompson) at the end of this season, they could keep getting bigger and bigger

Trojan Netters Open Season

After a one-year absence from the sport, Skyline College English teacher Paul Welles will resume his role as men's tennis coach.

Although Wells is "just getting to know them," he thinks he's got enough talented players to better last season's third place Coast Conference performance.

Four out of the five top SC singles players are returning from last year and coupled with the addition of some fine new talent, Welles said, "I feel that we can be very competitive with every team in the conference this year."

The Trojan netters play their first practice-match this Friday afternoon, traveling to Contra Costa College for a 2:30 contest.

Steve Dean and Efron Santos head the list of returnees who will be trying to knock off defending conference winner, Cabrillo College. Dean was the No. 2 singles player last spring while Santos was No. 3. Also coming back from last year are Bill Hastings and Rolando Baides.

New faces on the squad include some with a year of junior college competition credentials. Jim Jensen played at Merced Junior College in 1976. Scott Carpenter would have been the No. 5 singles player on the title-winning Cabrillo club, but was unable to compete because he lacked academic units. Now that he has moved up to the Bay Area, he will be playing with Skyline.

Another new member to Skyline College, as well as the Bay Area, is Mike Menicucci, a tough, aggressive player who almost went to Canada College instead of Skyline. After attending the University of Michigan and a private college in St. Jalena, where he played intramural tennis at both campuses, Menicucci moved to Burlingame where he wanted to continue playing tennis at one of the community colleges.

He chose Skyline over Canada because of the Colts' reputation of turning out top tennis teams.

He later commented, "I was almost scared out of going to Canada, so I came here. I found out, though, that they're really not that tough."

Free Pizzas For Winners

League Cage Action

Forty Daly City playground winners competed in the seventh Annual Toto's Basketball Skills Contest city-wide finals held at the Westmoor Girls Gym on February 5.

The contest was sponsored by Toto's Restaurant and the Daly City Recreation Department.

Contestants in grade divisions fourth and under through the high school competed in five basketball skills events: dribbling accuracy for time, around the world, spot shooting for time, passing accuracy, and free-throw shooting.

Winners in each division received a large pizza.

Prize ribbons went to first, second and third in each division and all recieved award certificates.

The objective of the contest was to help increase basketball skills of the participants while providing a fun playground competition.

Results were as follows:

Warriors End Rams' Reign

The North Peninsula League will crown a new basketball champion this season.

That was decided Monday at Jefferson High when South San Francisco High defeated three time defending champion Westmoor 63-60.

Westmoor and South City tied for fourth place in the NPL with 8-6 records. This contest was played to break the tie and determine who would make the playoffs.

South City will now play round-robin champ Jefferson tonight at 8:30 at Skyline College. Half Moon Bay will meet Serramonte Wednesday night at 8:30 in another playoff encounter. The winners will clash on Friday night for the league title. Jefferson will have to be beaten twice to be eliminated.

SSF opened quickly against the former champs, running off 10 straight points after Westmoor hit the opening hoop. Warrior center Paul Wintroath paced SSF during that stretch with some fine offensive rebounding.

Late in the first quarter Warrior guard Larry Grubbe picked up his third personal foul and Westmoor started to take control. A tip-in by Ram guard Chris Tyeskey with 6:03 left in the first half brought Westmoor to within two at 19-17. But that's as close as the Rams got.

South City, paced by the scoring of forward Johnny Jones, reeled off eight straight points and the Warriors were never headed. Westmoor did pull to within 60-56 with 1:12 left in the game, but then Grubbe iced the contest with three consecutive free throws.

Wintroath led the Warriors with 19 points. Jones and Grubbe contributed 11 each. Chris Tyeskey and guard Jack Dorn paced the Rams with 13 points each.

M-A, Westmoor Girls Victorious

Two favorites were knocked off in matchups between County girls prep basketball powers Thursday.

In the North Peninsula League, Westmoor rallied from a 16-point deficit with a 27-point fourth quarter to edge South San Francisco 59-58 at El Camino High. SSF had beaten Westmoor earlier.

Westmoor and SSF are both 4-2 now. Westmoor meets league leader Terra Nova (5-1) next week.

Menlo-Atherton turned giant-killer Thursday night to knock Carlmont from the ranks of the undefeated, 44-31, and move within a half game of the South Peninsula Athletic League lead.

M-A is 6-1 with one game remaining next Tuesday night against Sequoia. Carlmont has finished its season at 7-1.

Westmoor trailed SSF by 16 with seven minutes to go. A furious Ram press helped close the gap to three with 0:21 to go. Westmoor's Lisa Maurino sank a bucket with 0:13 left to narrow the deficit to a single point, 58-57.

Donna Imsand stole SSF's inbound pass, whipped the ball to Lani Amores at the top of the key, and Amores let fly the winning jump shot with 0:03 left. Amores led all scorers with 19 points.

Both M-A and Carlmont got a big surprise from M-A's Paulette Traina, a substitute guard who had been averaging a point a game. She came off the bench to pop through 10 points on long set shots.

A suffocating M-A press hurt Carlmont's running game. Said M-A Coach Pam Wimberley, "I was afraid that (Carlmont's) Alisa (Wilson) and Molly (Tyson) were going to beat our press, but the team settled down in the second and third quarters and finally played defense.

M-A center Melody Clark was a dominating factor, leading all scorers with 14 points and taking down 18 rebounds.

M-A will play Carlmont again for the right to represent the SPAL in Central Coast Section regionals.

JC Basketball

Skyline Moves Ahead of Oaks

Skyline College once again assumed control in the Coast Conference and Canada got back into the Camino Norte Conference playoff picture in community college basketball action Saturday night.

Skyline (8-1) ran over Gavilan, 80-56, to move a full game ahead of idle Menlo (7-2) in the Coast as frosh forward Jerry McNeill from Westmoor had his best game for the Trojans with 19 points and 15 rebounds.

Canada waited until the final second to edge Merritt, 66-64, on forward Ricky Crockett's tip-in to remain in fifth place (at 6-4) but only two games out of first in the crazy CNC race.

Merritt had upset top-ranked Santa Rosa last Wednesday and Contra Costa turned the trick on the Bearcubs, 65-64, Saturday. That leaves Contra Costa in command at 8-2 — with Santa Rosa, Alameda and Marin all deadlocked for second at 7-3. Marin remained ahead of Canada by upsetting Alameda, 100-82.

Canada will continue to battle for one of the four conference playoff berths Wednesday evening at Santa Rosa, then plays at Alameda Saturday night and hosts Contra Costa on February 23.

Canada fought back from a 30-20 deficit to go ahead 33-32 at the half. The Colts went up by five down the stretch at 57-52 but gave up eight straight points to fall behind 60-57 with two minutes left.

But Canada took the lead again at 63-62 on forward Jay Quakenbush's three point play with 40 seconds left, and after a missed Thunderbird shot went up by two on a Ken Booker free throw with 24 seconds to go.

Merritt scored with eight seconds left to tie it and Canada, after inbounding the ball, called timeout with two seconds on the clock.

Colt guard Mark Sullivan threw a midcourt pass to 6-5 spring-legged Phil Polee four-feet from the basket. Polee's jumper bounded off the rim but the 6-2 Crockett was there to put it in as the buzzer sounded.

Crockett led Canada with 14 points and had eight rebounds, as did Mark DeFrancisco as the Colts controlled the boards, 26-20.

It was the first time in three seasons that Canada has won at Merritt.

Skyline jumped off to a quick lead at Gavilan and led by 20 points, 47-27, by halftime. The margin reached as many as 29 points in the second half.

Soph forward Joe Adams complemented McNeil with 14 points and 15 rebounds and also had five assists and three steals. And the Colts got their usual backcourt leadership with Dave Davis scoring 17 points and Ted Scott 16.

Now 20-5 overall and ranked third among the state's small college teams, Skyline remains on the road Wednesday night, playing last place Ohlone (2-7) in Fremont. Ohlone features Coast Conference scoring leader Kevin Bowers (28.4).

Wrestling

Skyline Pair Gains Berths

A pair of newly crowned Coast Conference wrestling champions will lead Skyline College into the State Small Conference Invitational Friday at Sierra College in Rocklin.

Trojan 167-pounder Dave Cook was voted the outstanding wrestler of the Coast Conference tournament over the weekend at Cabrillo College in Aptos. And teammate Craig Schoene won the heavyweight crown by pinning Ohlone's Al Goularte in the finals. Both Skyline champs are freshmen from Crestmoor.

Cook, competing in one of the toughest divisions, decisioned Clay Reaves of Monterey Peninsula in the semifinals, then pulled out his championship bout with Ohlone's Wayne Christian with a take down and near fall (with a double arm bar) in the final seconds for a 9-6 decision.

Ohlone still won the team title with 78½ points and took the overall conference championship. Skyline finished third in the tournament with 55½ points and tied with Cabrillo for second in the overall final conference standings.

Four Trojans took seconds in their weight classes — David Lee (118), Dennis Anderson (134), Mike Thomas (150) and Mark Sanguinetti (158). Skyline will enter its full team Friday at Sierra — and welcome back 190 pounder Bob Ahsue, who missed the conference meet to attend an uncle's funeral.

Ninety-six team are entered, according to Roberta Goodwin of San Mateo, one of the entries in the "A" event.

Fresno Tourney

CSM Nine Shares

FRESNO — College of San Mateo's baseball team split a pair of games Saturday and wound up in a three-way tie for the championship of the season-opening Fresno Tournament.

CSM ran into strong pitching and lost the opener to Fresno, 6-1, but came back with strong pitching in the nightcap to shut down College of the Sequoias 7-2.

CSM, Fresno and COS each finished the tournament with 3-1 records. CSM opens play in the Ventura-Santa Barbara Tournament Thursday night in Ventura.

In the first game CSM was hurt by sloppy defense and a quiet offense.

But the Bulldogs got a strong pitching performance in the nightcap from Al Brondolo, a freshman righthander from Capuchino High. Brondolo threw only 84 pitches. His first pitch was a strike to 17 of the 35 men he faced in the nine-inning game (the only game in the tourney that went the distance; there was a two-hour time limit).

CSM rapped out 14 hits. Jeff Maxoutopolis had five of them, including two triples, and drove in three runs. John O'Leary collected three hits.

Expert Says Old Age 'Best Period' of Our Lives

By LIN DAY

People should prepare early for old age because it is the "best period of our lives, the only time we have our freedom," Dr. Russell Lee, 87, told the Ninth Annual Mayor's Conference for the Older American at Beresford Recreation Center, San Mateo, Friday.

Dr. Lee, who made $4 million in investments in three years after he retired from the Palo Alto Clinic, which he helped found, affirmed that seniors are frequently "at the peak of their abilities at 65," when often they are forced to retire.

Author of a new paperback on the stands this week, "No Gravy on the Vest, the Art of Growing Old in Style," Dr. Lee says his next book will be about the "prodigies of old age."

Titian was 90 when he painted a beautiful nude, considered by many his greatest painting, he recalls, and "Stradivarius made his best violin at the age of 96."

He told the assembly, mostly seniors, that if they kept lean, didn't smoke tobacco and abstained from liquor, they would have a "lot better old age."

He himself swims every day to keep his weight down, he said.

Senior citizens usually have four problems, he said: money, health, occupation and housing. They should begin planning at 40, set up an exercise routine and plan to do things.

"What I have done since I was 70 is by all means the most fun I have had," the doctor smiled.

In an interview later, he told The Times that women outlive men primarily because they don't work as hard today.

During the 19th century, he noted, men outlived women on a four-to-one ratio. "The mortality rate was awful."

The trend began to reverse itself at the turn of the century, he said.

"Women used to make the soap, wash clothes and dishes by hand, and do other chores all day long," he said. "Now they have machines."

At the same time, he said, men have "overeaten, oversmoked and overdrunk." They never exercise and have so deteriorated that the figures are reversed.

"Don't get fat if you want to live long and comfortably," Dr. Lee said. "The heart, kidneys and prostate are all aggravated.

Both Dr. Lee and his associate, Dr. Walter Bortz of the Palo Alto Clinic, son of a former American Medical Association president and scion of a famous Philadelphia medical family, emphatically declared that a vigorous, healthy sex life "with a willing partner" is a key factor in retaining youth and life.

A healthy attitude also was a key, they said.

Dr. Bortz told the group that older people who address themselves to health often are in better condition than the police riding around all day in cars on the beat.

He told of an 88-year-old man in Edinburgh, Scotland, who is still specializing in the 200-yard dash, and said age can muster a very robust capability.

Dr. Bortz blamed the getting-old process on those who in their middle years look upon getting old as a disgrace.

Dr. Bortz urged noncompetitive, rhythmic, sustained exercise. He himself runs in the Boston marathon but not competitively. "They are taking down the stands when I get in."

Edwin C. Gipson, chief of the Administrative Services Division of the state Department of Aging, the funding center that oversees about $40 million a year in federal grants to agencies, told of the scope of his department's work and recalled its history.

Formed in 1955 as the Citizens Advisory Committee on Aging, it became successively the Citizens Advisory Commission, then a unit of the Offices of Special Services under the State Health and Welfare Department, then in 1974 the Office on Aging, and last year, the California Department of Aging, he said.

It oversees such programs as Title III, social services; Title IV, training; Title V, multipurpose centers, and Title VII, nutrition projects.

The elderly are becoming an increasingly important segment of the population, he said.

Gertrude Steele of the College of San Mateo told the afternoon session that too often there are stereotypes in America of both youth and the aged. She urged a partnership to end them.

America got this way, she said, because of weakened family ties of those coming to a new country, early departure of youth to the frontier, a work situation that requires many moves, and even the high value placed on independence.

The trend works even more today toward separating the aged out of the community, putting them in communities of their own, setting up a form of segregation from the mainstream of society, she said.

Added to this, she said, is the fact that education is not geared to sociological change and retraining, even while the dominant emphasis is on the value of work. Meanwhile, she said, the percentage of older people is increasing.

Many are in poverty, particularly women, she said, noting that there are 138 women to 100 men at 65 and that the imbalance continues, with its implications worsened by the fact that men of that age marry younger women.

She called senility a "myth" and said 80 per cent of those over 65 are capable of managing their own affairs.

A Green Light For Plan

A deferred compensation plan for San Mateo County employes which would utilize the diversified investment services of a commercial bank was approved in concept Tuesday by the County Board of Supervisors.

A proposed contract for Central Bank to act as agent for the program and to provide administrative services is to be considered by the board at its Feb. 22 meeting.

The board's action was contrary to the recommendation of an administrative staff committee that the county administer the plan and limit investments strictly to savings accounts with banks or savings and loan associations.

Charles Zaloumis, a representative of Central Bank, said a plan administered by the bank would provide a choice of investment plans for employes, would provide a higher rate of interest, and would place financial accountability with the bank and not the taxpayers of the county.

Furthermore, he said, the bank has the expertise to administer the plan, as it is doing for other counties and cities.

Zaloumis said Sacramento County has a self-administered plan limited to savings accounts, with an interest return of slightly more than 6 per cent. On the other hand, Alameda County employes, with a plan administered by Central Bank, are receiving an interest rate of 8 per cent, he said.

Dist. Atty. Keith C. Sorenson, a member of the staff committee which recommended the county administered plan, said it was felt that it would be the least expensive to the employe, and no expense to the county. If there is outside administration, it would be necessary to pay for services.

Teachers May Sign

After a marathon negotiating session of nearly 50 hours this week, the South San Francisco teachers and district bargaining teams have reached tentative agreement on a two-year contract.

Both parties emerged from a closed door session at 9:45 a.m., Thursday, announcing the accord.

It was the last of the three meetings this week and it had begun 13 hours earlier.

The agreement, however, will not be official, unless it is approved by a majority of the unified school district's 600 teachers. They are represented by the California Teachers Association.

The tentative settlement came as a surprise to the community, which, until now, had only heard reports that negotiations were progressing slowly and might extend into late spring.

CTA President John Heron had said earlier this week that the two parties probably would declare an impasse and seek the help of the Educational Employment Relations Board if agreement were not reached by Thursdy.

The last time South San Francisco's teachers negotiated in 1974, talks ended in a two-week strike.

"I'm extremely pleased,," said the school district's new superintendent, Robert Kelly.

"I hope this is the beginning of a cooperative venture on the part of both parties."

Kelly has been on the job only two weeks.

Complete details of the tentative settlement package were not immediately available.

However, Kelly said it's believed to be the first two-year agreement in the history of the district, covering teachers' contracts for 1976-77 and 1977-78.

County May Pay Part Of Employe Retirement

The San Mateo County Board of Retirement has ordered an actuarial study to determine the financial effect of the county picking up a portion of employes' contributions to the county retirement fund.

County Tax Collector-Treasurer Ross Conti, administrator of the fund, said the information should be available by June, in time for the Board of Retirement to make a decision on the matter prior to start of meet and confer sessions between the county and employe organizations later this year.

The Organization of Deputy Sheriffs (ODS) was the only employe group to negotiate county payment of a portion of an employe's contribution to the retirement fund in the current memorandum of understanding which extends through 1977.

However, that agreement by the county, must be approved by the Board of Retirement.

The agreement called for the county to pay 15 per cent of the public safety members' contributions to the retirement fund.

At a meeting of the Board of Retirement this week, representatives of other employe organizations said they are interested in including the county contribution as a factor in negotiating future memoranda of agreement.

In the case of the public safety members, Conti said, the ODS agreed to less in salary increases in exchange for county paying 15 per cent of the employe's retirement contribution, beginning next September.

Conti cited for an example the situation of an employe who is receiving $1,000 a month and is paying $100 in retirement. The county would pick up $15 of the retirement payment, leaving the employe with that much more income. That would be an advantage to the county, too, because it would not have to contribute the actual $15 since the employe would not be able to withdraw the county-paid share should he or she quit.

However, Conti pointed out, there is the disadvantage to an employe who retires of having to start paying income tax on retirement income sooner than if he or she paid the entire employe share of retirement contribution. Retirement income is exempt from income tax until the amount paid into the fund by the employe is paid out in retirement benefits.

That could be a major factor should some employe groups be able to negotiate a 50 per cent county payment to employe retirement contributions, the maximum allowed by law.

Agencies In Area Ask Help

Lonely shut-ins, multi-handicapped children and and convalescent hospital patients are among those who need volunteer help and whose specific requests are listed with the Volunteer Bureau-Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County.

FRIENDLY VISITING SERVICE — Friendly persons to visit lonely shut-ins at their homes or in convalescent hospitals or boarding homes. Time is flexible and may be done at volunteer's convenience. Both men and women are needed.

CATHOLIC RESETTLEMENT OFFICE — Volunteers who can give two hours a week to tutor Southeast Asian refugees in conversational English. Work may be done on a one-to-one basis in the home and scheduling and location are flexible.

PARENTAL STRESS SERVICE — Assistants able to receive training next month on Saturdays and in the evening. Workers will serve on the service "hotline."

DRIVER — Someone to assist a young man every Friday by providing him with a ride from Belmont to Foster City at 4 p.m.

PLANNED PARENTHOOD — Volunteers to work as receptionists, clerical workers, library assistants and public speakers. An interview is required and training will be provided. The next orientation session is slated the morning of March 1.

DEVELOPMENT CENTER — Persons to work on a one-to-one basis with multi-handicapped children. Time and hours are flexible.

BAYVIEW CONVALESCENT HOSPITAL — Volunteers to handle a variety of jobs including morning coffee service, scheduled activities, patient shopping and visiting.

More information about these and other volunteer jobs may be obtained by contacting the Volunteer Bureau-Voluntary Action Center which has its main offices at 119 Primrose Road, Burlingame. A project of the Assistance League of San Mateo County, the bureau shares in the United Way of the Bay Area and is funded, in part, by the County of San Mateo.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

A beef stew is always a welcome dish, especially on a wintry day. This stew is gussied up with mushrooms and wine to make it a special treat.

EASY BEEF STROGANOFF

- 3 pounds beef stew meat
- 1 pound fresh mushrooms, sliced
- 1 can cream of mushroom soup
- ½ cup red wine
- 1 package dried onion soup
- ½ cup water

Combine the three pounds beef, one pound sliced mushrooms, cream of mushroom soup, half cup red wine and half cup water in a deep casserole. Sprinkle the dry onion soup mix over the top. Cover and bake in 350-degree oven for 3 to 3½ hours. (NOTE: Check after 2 hours cooking, if it seems a bit dry, add some water.) Serve over hot noodles. Serves 6 to 8.

Looking through my "To be tested and tasted" file I found this recipe for a delicious apple dessert.

Spicy, with a generous amount of apples and nuts to give it texture and flavor and a rich sauce to top it off — it makes a tasty treat.

CALIFORNIA APPLE PUDDING

- 1 cup sugar
- ¼ cup soft butter or margarine
- 1 egg, unbeaten
- 2 large unpeeled apples, shredded (2 cups)
- 1 cup sifted flour
- 1 teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Beat together the one cup sugar, one-fourth cup butter and egg, until fluffy. Shred apples and stir into creamed mixture. Add sifted dry ingredients and walnuts. Bake in greased 8-inch square pan 40 to 45 minutes. Cut in squares.

Serve hot. (Freshly baked or reheated) with this rich sauce.

RICH PUDDING SAUCE

- ½ cup butter
- 1 cup sugar
- ½ cup light cream or half and half

In small saucepan, combine the half cup butter, 1 cup sugar and half cup cream and heat very slowly (10 to 15 minutes) stirring occasionally until slightly thickened. Add 1 teaspoon vanilla and a dash of nutmeg, plus (for grown-ups) 2 tablespoons rum. Serve hot. Makes 1½ cups.

Birthday Tourney Monday

Thomas Curr, Tournament Director, announced that Marian Council No. 3773, Knights of Columbus, will conduct its eighteenth annual Invitational Basketball Tournament on Washington's Birthday, this Monday at the Westlake Park Gym, 149 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City at noon.

The participating teams are Holy Angels, Our Lady of Mercy, Our Lady of Perpetual Help and Saint Thomas More.

Each team will be awarded a trophy dependent upon their final placement in the tournament.

In addition, individual trophies will be awarded to a 10 man All-Star team selected from the best players in the tournament. The public is invited to attend all games free of charge.

WANT AD RATES

Family Thrift Special

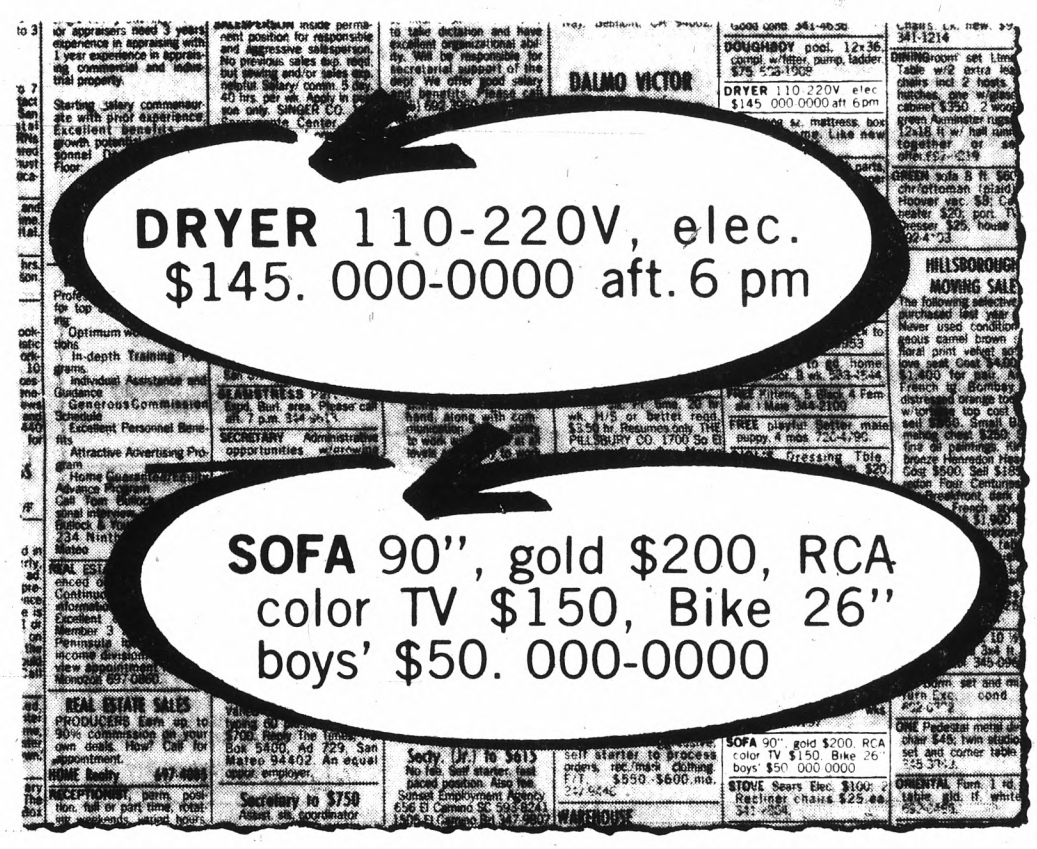
"Best Bargain in San Mateo County"

2 LINES-9 ISSUES (140,000 HOMES) -$7.00

These special "Wanted To Buy" or "For Sale" Private Party ads will appear in all Amphlett Printing Company's publications for 1 week, 6 issues of The Times, 1 issue of The Post and 2 issues of the San Bruno Publications, 9 publication times in all. This combination of publications gives you over 140,000 circulation concentrated in San Mateo County.

The rate for these special private party ads is $7.00 for a 2 line minimum ad for 9 issues. Each additional line, above the 2 line minimum, will be billed at $3.00 per line. So, a 2 line ad for 1 week in all 9 issues of Amphlett Printing Company's Publications would cost $7.00. A 3 line ad would cost $10.00, a 4 line ad $13.00, etc. These special Private Party Want Ad rates are available only for items priced below $500, or when ads contain multiple items, the total value of all advertised items may not exceed $500.

These special private party ads will appear in the appropriate classification within the Classified Section.



New Private Party Want Ad Rate About 39¢ Per Line Per Issue

The requirements for special Private Party Want Ads are:

(1) Only private party advertisers are eligible, no commercial ads accepted.

(2) The item or items advertised "For Sale" or "Wanted to Buy" must have a total value of less than $500.

(3) Each item advertised must be individually listed and individually priced. For ads containing multiple items, the number of items listed may not exceed the number of lines in the ad. i.e. A 2 line ad may contain no more than 2 items, a 3 line ad may contain up to 3 items, etc.

(4) The ad must be placed for 1 full week, 9 times, in all of Amphlett Printing Company's publications. You may cancel the ad prior to the full 9 times appearances but you will be charged the full 9 time rate, no refunds.

(5) DEADLINES: Classified advertising must be placed by 3:00 p.m., day preceding publication, Monday through Friday: 12 noon Saturday for Monday's publication, and 48 hours preceding Holidays.

Rotary Hosts Guest From Skyline

Members of the Daly City Rotary Club recently heard Dennis Arreola, Skyline College financial aid officer, at a luncheon meeting.

Arreola told members there are three kinds of financial aid available to Skyline students — loans, grants and work-stury aid.

The aid officer said 17 per cent of Skyline students receive a form of financial aid. There are 3,400 day students and 4,000 night students now enrolled.

The Daly City Rotary has 45 local business and professional men as members. The club meets every Wednesday at noon at Bianchini's Restaurant at the Skyline Shopping Center.

Arreola is a graduate of Balboa High School, Skyline College and University of San Francisco.

Stag Crab Chioppino At Parish Hall Friday

The Westlake Catholic Men's annual "Stag Crab Chioppino" will be held on Friday in our Lady of Mercy parish hall.

The evening will begin with refreshments at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Make your reservations now, as every year has been sold out early and tickets will not be sold at the door.

Tickets at $7.50 each may be obtained from chairmen Rick Rickert, 756-9648, or reservations chairman Joe Potter, 992-3262, and John Hughes, 756-8279.

Meeting Today of Sorority

Co-chairwomen Olive Rubek and Joyce Thompson will meet today at the home of Mrs. Rubek in Colma with the members of Beta Sigma Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International to finalize plans for the chapter's annual Fashion Show-Luncheon to be held on March 19 at 12:30 p.m. at the Hope Lutheran Church hall in Daly City.

The theme of this year's affair is a "Fashion Cruise." Fashions will be presented by Su-Bonn of South San Francisco. Members of the chapter will act as models.

Beta Sigma Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, a philanthropic and service organization, will donate all proceeds to the California League for the Handicapped.

Flaming Hawk Sets Off Fire

A hawk that landed on a high voltage power line on San Bruno Mountain Monday noon fell to earth in flames, touching off a small fire in the unseasonably dry grass.

The fire burned about a half-acre of grass before being extinguished, a Brisbane Police Department spokesman said.

Extremely dry weather conditions have again prompted fire department officials to warn citizens of the fire danger, especially in areas such as San Bruno Mountain.

ACCEPTABILITY:
The Times reserves the right to reject, censor and properly classify any advertisement.

THE FIRST WORD of each 8 point type ad will be spelled out. Abbreviations will be accepted on the first word in 12 point or larger type lines. However, any ad that does not begin with an alphabetical character will not be in alphabetical sequence.

DEADLINE: Classified advertising must be placed by 3:00 p.m. day preceding publication, Monday through Friday, 12 noon Saturday for Monday's publication and 48 hours preceding holidays.

ERRORS: No responsibility is assumed by publisher for errors in any advertisement covered by order, nor for the omission of any advertisement in whole or in part, nor for failure to comply with the placement of advertising as ordered either as to frequency or volume. In no event shall publisher be liable for special damages or consequential damages even if it has been notified of the possibility of such damages.

Errors in published advertisements must be reported immediately; and if done, publisher will publish an appropriate correction and where publisher deems it necessary a rerun of the advertisement as corrected, if in publisher's judgment the error substantially varies the meaning of the advertisement as ordered. ROTARY SPEAKER

Jack Erickson of the Rotary Club of Daly City is shown with the Rev. Clyde Dibble of Menlo Park, who points to a picture of Eurico Caruso. Reverend Dibble spoke about Caruso and showed slides and played recordings of Caruso, singing in the teens and twenties. Reverend Dibble has done intensive research and travelled many time to Italy and to Caruso's native city of Naples.

Parish Sale Inventory In DC Keeps Growing

The parish hall of Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church is housing an ever growing collection of items for the annual parish rummage sale which will be held on Feb. 25 and 26 under the direction of Mrs. Michael Carman, Mrs. William Savage, Jack M. Joyce and Tony Barrett.

Despite the gratifying response to the first appeal for used clothing, books, records, bric-a-brac, electrical appliances and white elephants, the committee is eager for more contributions.

If you have something you would like to donate take it by the parish hall, located on Elmwood drive or phone Joyce, 756-6948, to arrange for the pick up of larger items.

NEWLYWEDS, Barbara and Warren Bullis Jr., are settled into their new home in Oakland.

Barbara, the former Barbara Schnapp of Daly City, and Bullis were married recently in her parents Westbrook Avenue home by retired Judge Frank Blum. Sue Milton was the maid of honor and Wynn Bullis, the groom's brother, was the best man. The reception was held at the Breentwood Lodge.

The new Mrs. Bullis graduated from Westmoor High School and the bridegroom graduated from Eureka High School and made his home in Arcata, before coming to the Bay Area as a member of the Highway Patrol.

TONI MICHELS of the Mary's Help Hospital Guild is concerned that localites may have forgotten that the guild is continually collecting coupons for the scholarship fund.

The guild's scholarship fund is used to help young people study for careers in health related fields and each year several localites are awarded funds to help finance their education.

Coupons and bonus stamps should be left in the gift shop at Mary's Help Hospital or mailed to Mrs. Michels, 15 Morton Drive, Daly City.

HAVE YOU READ about the DeBolt family? They are the folks with the very large family, six natural children and 13 adopted or foster children.

The story of this remarkable couple and their children is the subject of a book, "Nineteen Steps up the Mountain" by Joseph P. Blank, which will be discussed at the next meeting of the Friends of the Daly City Library.

Mrs. Olga Canada, book review chairman, has arranged to have Mrs. Dorothy DeBolt tell of her life with the children, most of whom had been considered unadoptable because of their handicaps, during the meeting of the Friends on Feb. 24 at 7:30 p.m. The meeting will be held in the Serramonte Library's Cultural room.

FRIDAY IS THE last day to order your tickets to the Hillside Homeowners Improvement Association's Roaring 20's dinner dance and installation to be held on Feb. 26.

Mrs. Frank Loretta is in charge of reservations to the party which will be held in the Italian American Social Club, 25 Russian St. in San Francisco. Tickets are available for $15 per person.

HOME FROM Southern California where they visited family and attended a special conference on religious education are Mr. and Mrs. John Madrosen of Westlake.

MR. AND MRS. Robert Morford hosted a farewell party for their grandson, Mark Alan Terry of San Jose, in their Franciscan Park home last weekend.

Young Terry left yesterday to begin a four year enlistment in the Army, first stop, Fort Bragg, N.C.

FOUNDER'S DAY

Promoting the Westlake School's Founder's Day International Night activity are Lori Kantman and Ashley Fink, both fourth graders. The event will be held Feb. 24 at 7 p.m. and will feature ethnic dances, food and costume modeling.

DC Man Receives Plaque

James Grealish, a resident of Daly City, was recently presented a Navy plaque by Rear Admiral John T. Coughlin, former Commandant of the Twelfth Naval District, in recognition of his services to the Navy and to the Twelfth Naval District.

Grealish is a vice president of Protected Investors of America, a San Francisco full service investment planning firm.

He is also a Rear Admiral in the United States Naval Reserve, currently serving as Commander Naval Reserve Readiness Command Region 20, with headquarters at Treasure Island.

The Region 20 command is responsible for the administration and training of Naval Reservists in Northern California, Nevada and Utah.

Chief Reports on Traffic Safety

The Traffic Safety Grant awarded to the City of Colma by the California Office of Traffic Safety and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration has been in operation since April 1, 1976.

The grant has provided the Colma Police Department with a new patrol vehicle, radar unit and one officers salary. The purpose of the grant is to reduce fatal and injury accidents and make drivers aware of poor driving habits.

According to Chief Jim Dorris, the results of the first nine months have been gratifying.

The injury accident rate for the last three months has been reduced by 64 per cent bringing the total number of injury accidents for April through December down by 19 per cent.

Dorris said many people are getting used to seeing the white Accident Reduction Unit driven by Officer Gene Tognetti as they drive through Colma.

Officer Tognetti has been concentrating on the hazardous traffic violations and has found that once the purpose of the program is explained to them, most drivers react favorably even though they receive a citation.

Chief Dorris stated that by doing a statistical analysis of prior years accidents, the location and times of high accident periods were pinpointed allowing the traffic officer to work a flexible schedule around these areas. Chief Dorris emphasized that the policy of strict traffic enforcement was designed to make traveling through the City of Colma safer for residents and visitors alike. Apparently this policy is working, he said.

Lawn Watering During Drought —Here's How

By IVA NEWMAN

A question that is being asked repeatedly is how to water the lawn during the drought. Here are some facts that the University of California Extension Services are giving out in answer to that question.

You can determine when your lawn needs watering by observing its appearance and by examining its soil. Look at your lawn. When lawn changes color from bright green to dull gray-green, it needs water immediately. When stressed for water, your lawn will show footprints and will not "spring back" from normal foot traffic. If water is not applied at this time the gray-green hue will deteriorate to a tan color, and this indicates severe water stress and dead grass.

Examine the soil. Use a probe to check for soil moisture in your lawn's root zone. If the soil feels moist or will form a ball when squeezed in your hand, its moisture level is adequate. This test can also be used to determine how often to water. How often you should water your lawn depends on its appearance, or how moist its soil is, or both.

How long to water? The goal of efficient irrigation is to wet the soil where grass roots are growing, no more and no less. Most turfgrass roots extend four to six inches into the soil but some penetrate to 12 inches or more. Generally you should wet the top six inches of the soil thoroughly. Deeper root systems take in water from a greater soil volume, so lawns with deep roots can be watered less often than lawns with shallow root systems.

Avoid Water Runoff

When watering to the depth of a root system, don't apply water more rapidly than the soil can absorb it. Avoid water runoff. To do so may require turning off sprinklers for 1 to 2 hours to let the water soak in before continuing irrigation. Repeat this cycle until the desired total amount of water is applied.

Factors impending water penetration should be corrected. The two most common ones are thatch accumulation and soil compaction. Thatch is undecomposed organic matter that builds up between the leaf blades and the soil surface. Thatch restricts water, air, and nutrient movement into the root zone. A thick thatch layer should be removed in spring or fall by vertical mowing or by hand raking. Heavy traffic on turfgrass compacts its soil surface. Compacted soil also restricts air, water and nutrient entry and hinders root development. Compacted areas should be cored. Summed up, the time it takes to water your lawn adequately is determined by the time it takes to thoroughly wet a lawn's soil to the depth of its root system. Grasses and soils differ, so irrigation schedules must be tailored to individual lawns. Remember it is not uncommon to irrigate for ½ to 1 hour or longer at each watering in order to wet the soil adequately.

Slopes Difficult

Sprinklers should distribute water uniformly over the lawn. Check your sprinklers often and adjust or repair them as required. Hose and sprinkle devices with circular spray patterns tend to be less efficient than some other models because of run-off and waste. Plastic tubes that spray a light mist, and oscillating (or wave) sprinklers, apply water slowly and fit house-lot pattern better. On large lawns, part-circle impact-drive sprinklers can be effective.

Landscape features influence irrigation practices. For example, turf on slopes in areas receiving reflected heat or much wind may require more irrigation than would turf not subject to these environmental factors. Check your lot for areas which may require special irrigation treatment. Some spots may require supplemental watering by hand.

During low rainfall or drought years, some California areas may have limited, rationed, or restricted water supplies. Under these conditions, here are some guidelines the Extension Service suggests you follow:

Do not apply fertilizer to turfgrass except in the fall rainy season.

Mow your grass higher and less often. Cool-season grasses (e.g., Kentucky bluegrass, perennial ryegrass) should be mowed at a 2-inch height, and warm-season grasses (e.g., bermudagrass, zoysia-grass should be mowed at a ¾-to 1-inch height. Don't let your grass grow more than twice the recommended mowing height.

Reduce weed competition. Drought stress encourages weediness in turf. Remove weeds by hand or use an appropriate registered herbicide to control broad-lead weeds in turf, because weeds compete with the turf grass for the limited amount of water available.

Bad News for Broadmoor

By FRANK LaPIERRE

Most cities get some bad news and some good news. But Broadmoor, a small community surrounded by Daly City and with the state's last police district, seems to get nothing but bad news these days.

After months of haggling, the three-member Police Commission decided to let residents vote on whether they wanted to increase the property tax to support the financially plagued police department.

The people overwhelmingly asked the state legislature, via the ballot box, to let them raise their taxes from 75 cents to not more than $1.50 per $100 of assessed valuation.

Things looked good — for a couple of months.

Then the Hartford Insurance Co., the community's insurance carrier, notified Broadmoor it was canceling its coverage on New Year's Day.

This forced the residents to allow themselves to be "protected" by Daly City's insurance under a blanket policy. It also reduced their police chief to the rank of captain, and a police lieutenant to sergeant.

So far, both sides in the arrangement agree, things have been going pretty well.

At the urging of residents, the commission agreed that the Daly City-Broadmoor tie would last only as long as it took to once again get insurance coverage for Broadmoor police officers.

Mort Levinson, insurance broker, last month reportedly told commission representatives that coverage could be obtained but it would be costly — an annual premium of $7,200 for $300,000 worth of coverage.

A $1 million dollar total extended coverage policy might be available for $18,000 annually, it was understood.

Before the insurance mess was touched off last fall, Broadmoor was paying $5,000 for $1 million coverage.

The commissioners agonized over where the $18,000 for the premium would come from. Daly City had hit the district for $900 in workmen's compensation in January, a commitment dictated by the joint agreement between the two communities. That payment had to be paid monthly, instead of annually, Daly City officials said.

If the agreement runs the full six months, it will cost Broadmoor $5,400, Commissioner Dean Davenport points out.

Between July 1 and Dec. 1, Broadmoor goes through a budgetary "dryspell." In the past, the community borrowed money from its reserves or the county to meet its financial obligations.

Where they will go this year to meet their obligations is yet another concern of the commission.

How much does Broadmoor need to make ends meet?

"About $150,000," according to Davenport.

Meanwhile, the commission decided it probably could pay the insurance premium.

AUTOMATIC GARAGE DOOR OPENER SYSTEM BY

ALLIANCE

It's made by Alliance ... the people who pioneered automatic garage door opener systems.
It features transistorized radio controls and solid state circuitry for dependable operation.
It works in the palm of your hand to open the garage door ... turn on the light ... close the door ... then turn off the light.
It eliminates struggling with that heavy garage door.
It keeps you and your property safer and more secure day and night.
Genie quality throughout ...
That's how you know it's genuine ...

$10 monthly*

- FM stereo, AM-FM receiver, record player with diamond stylus
- Two new Sensi-Bass speakers
- Professional quality sound

Our buyer took advantage of a factory close-out to bring you this super-low price on Sony's famous EX-1 stereo components! This is a revolutionary concept in stereo design that will change your thinking about what a compact system can do. Turntable is single-play type, the kind most professionals prefer for top audio performance and is made of cast aluminum, which eliminates speed irregularities and warp! Tone arm and magnetic cartridge with diamond stylus are pre-adjusted and dynamically balanced. Unit even has an automatic record sensor that adjusts the tone arm dropping point! Twin speakers are especially sensitive and increase the lower end of the bass frequency range! Hurry while quantities last! Also available with cassette or 8-track recorder for a low $228.88
